KEEP LID ON THE COUNTY OR QUIT SAYS FOLK

Writes Letter to Public Prosecutor That Saloons Must Close on Sunday.

POINTS TO THE LAW

Executive Threatens Quo Warranto Proceedings Under New Law.

THIRSTY ARE SERVED

Anyone Could Buy Beer in the County While Bars in City Were Closed.

Gov. Folk told a Post-Dispatch reporter over the long-distance telephone Monday that he had written a letter to Prosecuting Attorney Roland L. Johnston of St. Louis County telling him that he, the Governor, would institute proceedings to oust Johnston from office unless the laws are enforced in the couny.

The Governor said that he had further told Johnston that he was reliably informed that the law is not being enforced in St. Louis County, particularly the excise law. The new quo warranto law, which goes into effect Aug. 11, will enable the Governor to take the initiative in removing county officials whom he believes to be derelict in the performance of their duty.

The reports from St. Louis County that the saloons were open in violation of the law Sunday prompted him to write the letter, couched in postive language, to Prosecuting Attorney Johnston.

Prosecuting Attorney Johnston was told by telephone about Gov. Folk's letter, and was asked what he had to say about it. He replied that he had not received the letter let, and would not say anything in advance.

"Have you anything to say as to whether the laws are being enforced in St. Louis County?" he was asked.

"I'll wait and see the letter," said Johnston.

The Governor also said over the telephone to a Post-Dispatch reporter:

"I intend to investigate the attitude of St. Louis County toward saloon keepers and gamblers who continue to violate the law and insult the State authorities.

"The saloon men of St. Louis County have no more right to keep their places open on Sunday than have those of St. Louis.

"When the bill providing an Excise Commissioner was before the Legislature the friends of St. Louis County declared that no lawlessness existed there.

"But immediately after the Legislature adjourns the 'lid' goes off and the county is wide open, judging from newspaper reports.

"If these conditions continue to exist, I shall call upon the Attorney-General when the quo warranto law becomes effective, against every official of St. Louis County and all other counties of the State who knowingly permit the law to be ignored."

Weak Lid Effort.

An effort was made to put the lid on at the South Broadway resorts and at Valley Park by deputy sheriffs acting under special orders Sunday. Elsewhere in the county the usual lidless gayety prevailed.

At the South Broadway resorts, according to the deputies who invaded that district, a "tip" preceded them and they found doors closed and crowds standing in the vicinity of the saloons, expectancy written in the eyes of the loungers. It is supposed that the invasion of Valley Park and South Broadway was due to the publications of facts regarding Sunday drinking in the county which have appeared in the Post-Dispatch, and the investigation by the grand jury of violations of the law by saloons and gardens.

Deputies Campbell and Shores were detailed to the South Broadway work. They first visited the saloon of William Horn, 9125 South Broadway, where the doors were closed. A crowd was in the street. Deputy Shores gained admission through the back door on his request for permission to use the telephone. One man was in the saloon.

Afraid of Deputies.

Shores called up Schaefer's saloon, the one nearest Horn's. He said he wanted a drink, but was told that two deputy sheriffs were in the neighborhood and that the place was closed.

"The deputies left on the last car," said Shores, but when he and Campbell reached the saloon it was not open.

They found the wine gardens of John Reis and Leonard Mayer, on Weis avenue, running at full blast. The proprietors of these resorts allege that they sell only wine made from grapes grown by themselves and that they are not violating the law. The wine-drinking and dancing (the latter at Mayer's place) were not disturbed.

Eureka and Glencoe Next.

Deputy Sheriff Sturdy says he sat on the lid all day at Valley Park, where there are seven saloons. He will keep the doors shut between the bars and the thirsty at Eureka and Glencoe next Sunday, he says, in addition to Valley Park.

None of the deputies remained on duty long after sunset and what was done after that time they say they do not know.

Delmar Garden was closed as usual, but Mark Gumberts' and Smith's clubs near the garden were running at full tilt. At Meramec Highlands beer in small tin cans was served in the dance hall. It was sold at Suburban Garden and at Creve Coeur in mugs at 10 cents per.

Sheriff Herpel said Monday that no special effort was made to keep the lid on except at the South Broadway resorts and at Valley Park.

JUNE 17TH 07.

Real summer garden weather is here, and here to stay for a time. Reports received at the local Weather Bureau this morning show the highest average temperatures for the season, and there are no indications of cooler weather anywhere.

The forecast: "Fair and continued warm tonight and Tuesday; light, variable winds."

The barometer is above the normal all over the entire country, and as a result there has been little precipitation anywhere, though local showers were reported in the Rocky Mountain region, Texas, Nebraska and Minnesota. It is a trifle cooler on the eastern slope of the Rocky Mountains and warmer elsewhere.

Temperatures in other cities at 7 a. m. were: Atlanta, Indianapolis, Memphis, New York, Kansas City and St. Paul. 70; Chicago and Omaha, 74; Philadelphia and New Orleans, 76; San Francisco, 58; Salt Lake City, 44; Washington, 66; Denver, 54; Duluth and Detroit, 68.

COUNTERFEITERS WORK ON CROWDED TROLLEY CARS

Seven Conductors Get Bogus Silver Dollars and Another Refused One.

In the hope of running down a gang of counterfiters the police are seeking a white man and a negro who "shoved the queer" on seven street car conductors Sunday. In support of their theory that expert conlackers are at work in St. Louis, the police have turned over to the Federal authorities seven silver dollars that so closely resemble the real article that not even street car conductors were enable to detect the deception.

Only one out of eight conductors detected the counterfeit. He was Virgil Blank of 5801 Delmar avenue. A man boarded his car twice Sunday afternoon and attempted to pass a dollar which Blank declares was a counterfeit. Blank says he observed the man's features closely and will be able to identify him if he is arrested.

NEW NINE-HOUR LAW LETS CHILDREN QUIT AT 5 P. M.

One Big Shoe Factory Will Give Same Hours to All Its 1500 Employes.

The city washerwoman and the city ashman were forgotten when the employes of Building Commissioner Smith were paid for the month of May and these two servitors of the city are clamoring for their money. Anna Buttinger of 924A High street, washes some 3000 towels for the city every month. Her May bil lis $90.99. Peter Bohan hauls the City Hall ashes and his May bill is $81.14.

Henrietta Coleman wants $3.06 for extra towel washing and F. S. Connelly wants $48.02 and J .A. Cash $4, both for furnishing coal for use at the Four Courts. All these bills were overlooked and forgotten when the May payroll was sent to the Auditor's office.

BAKER CASE IS AGAIN DELAYED

Judge Sale Takes No Action on Bribery Evidence.

Judge Sale again deferred action Monday in the case growing out of the alleged bribery of Joseph Baker, a State's witness against "Little Georgie" Williams, indicted for murder in the first degree for killing ex-Detective Lee Killian. Baker, who was married Saturday to the woman who had been known as his wife, was taken to the Four Courts Monday by Detective Stahl. He had a conference with Circuit Attorney Sager. He will be kept in custody of representatives of Sager's office until the trial is called again in July.

Citations for contempt of court may be issued by Judge Sale when he takes up the case, probably on Tuesday.

WANTS SANTA TO STAY, EVEN AS A PHANTOM

MAKES BABIES HAPPY

"We All Know It's a Fake," She Says, "but Let the Old Fellow Live On."

"I hope President Roosevelt won't decide before next Christmas to abolish Santa Claus as the creation of a nature faker, meant to deceive children," said Miss Phoebe W. Couzins formerly United States Marshal in St. Louis, in an interview with a Post-Dispatch reporter at the Hotel Jefferson Monday

"A lot of things taught to children have always been 'fakes,'" said Miss Couzins, "and I don't know that any of us are the worse for it now. Whatever may be the merit of the President's controversy with the writers on animal life, their stories are fully as profitable for children as the goody-goody books I used to read when a child.

"They were fakes, as I very soon found out when I came to know real people.

Goes Too Far, She Says.

"The President has also gone too far in condemning married people whose families do not come up to his standard, and in applying such a term as 'criminal' to wives who do not desire so many children as he thinks they should have.

"It is more criminal to bring children into existence, when there is no reasonable prospect of supporting them decently, than to shrink from doing so.

"The President's own famiy is a model one, and this may not be an unmixed blessing for the country. For it has made his view too narrow. He is apt to think of all children as having as good opportunities as his own, of all mothers as being as capable as their mother.

Advice to President.

"My sympathy is with the Missouri club women who recently told the President, in effect, to run the Government and let them run their own domestic affairs, such as determining the size of their families.

"I can't share his fears of race suicide after a visit I made the other day to the New York East Side, swarming with child life. The problem of the city, and the problem of the country and the small town, is to bring up rightly the children already born. This is more important than to increase the birth rate.

"I know many others who think, as I do, that the President has dipped into too many matters like these, outside even a liberal construction of the duties of his office. But I do not believe his popularity has diminished. He will not be nominated for a third term, not because of any loss of popularity, but because the sentiment of the American public, as well as his own view, is against the third-term idea.

No Third Term.

"In Washington, where I now reside, the third-term talk is confined to job holders of the sort who always want to see the administration perpetuated. Politicians of the large sort are not favoring the idea.

"Neither is there much active Taft sentiment in Washington. As for Cannon, he is too old, past 70, now and would be 75 before his term would end, were he made President. Foraker is more of a favorite in Washington than people here seem to realize."

Miss Couzins, now an invalid from rheumatism, is in St. Louis to attend the commencement exercises and semi-centennial celebration of Washington University. The first woman to be admitted to the university's law department was graduated in 1871. "When one has been 36 years out of college," is her manner of making any statement involving the question of her age.

WILL COME FROM PITTSBURG TO PROSECUTE HOST'S NURSE

As a sequel to the disappearance of a diamond ring, the property of Miss Catherine Verner of Pittsburg, Pa., who recently returned to her home from a visit to the home of Dr. Robert E. Wilson, 4224 Westminster place, Lillie Poston, 19 years old, a domestic, employed in the Wilson household, was arrested Sunday night and is now locked up in the Newstead Avenue Police Station pending the arrival of Miss Verner, who has telegraphed that she will return to St. Louis at once.

The domestic was arrested at that time on suspicion of knowing something about the missing jewel, but as Miss Verner thought she might have placed the ring in her trunk, which had been shipped to Pittsburg, the young woman was released.

LOST---CURIOSITY OF THREE WOMEN

Heard One Threaten to Use Hatchet, but Did Not Wait to See Fight.

Three women in City Hall Police Court Monday testified that they heard Mrs. Maud Eaton threaten to cut Mrs. Maggie Hornick with a hatchet, and that they then withdrew into their houses without waiting to see the issue of the quarrel.

Each said that she had no interest in the disturbance, because she considered it none of her business.

"It is strange," said he, "that three women in neighboring houses should all be simultaneously smitten with lack of curiosity as to whether Mrs. Eaton would carry out her threat. I'm sure Mr. P. T. Barnum's successor would be delighted to star in his side show such marvels as you are. The Court must regard your testimony with some skepticism."

He thereupon fined Mrs. Hornick, whose witnesses the three women were, $10 for disturbing the peace of Mrs. Eaton. The witnesses were Mrs. Eva Mosgrove, 1715 South Seventeenth street, and Mrs. Barlow and her sister, Mrs. Busticke, both of 1413A Cass avenue.

MET BY FRIENDS HE DROPS DEAD

"How Are You?" Crowd Cry; "Fine," Says Farmer's Son as He Topples Over.

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill., June 17.—Israel Greenhalg of Livingston, Madison County, Ill. left St. Louis at 9 o'clock this morning on a McKinley car returning for home from a visit with relatives. He alighted from the car at Stanton and met friends whom he greeted pleasantly, "How are you, anyhow?" they called. "Fine," said Greenhalg, and fell dead. He was 22 years old and a son of Michael Greenhalf, a farmer. Israel was unmarried. Heart disease was the cause of death.

SCHOPPE AND M'NAMARA TO BE CAPTAINS

These Lieutenants Will Probably Be Promoted to New Positions.

A man who in a position to know told a Post-Dispatch reporter that Lieut. Joseph Schoppe of the Soulard Street District, and Lieut. James McNamara of the Newstead Avenue District, are most likely to be promoted to the rank of Captain to fill the two new positions created by the police law enacted by the last Legislature. Both men ihave been for many years in the Police Department, and have rendered uniformly good service.

Two sergeants will be promoted to the rank of lieutenant. The most probable men for these positions are said to be Sergt. Seth Singleton, now stationed in Mayor Well's office, and Sergt. John Hoffman of the Central District.

Lieut. Schoppe, who is now in command of the Soulard Street Station at night, was formerly one of the best detectives in the department. He was in charge at night of the World's Fair Police Station. His failure to win higher promotion is said to have been the result of political combinations.

Lieut. McNamara is regarded as one of the best executives in the Police Department. He was a lieutenant several years ago, but was not in the favor of politicians, and was reduced in rank and sent to Carondelet. He was sent later to the Carr street district, where he broke up a band of gamblers and again got himself in trouble with the politicians.

No announcement has been made as to when the Police Board will consider the appointments made necessary by the new law, but it seems to be a well settled fact that these are among the promotions that will be made.

WOOER FINDS A FRIEND IN COURT

Youth Haled to Trial by Girl's Mother Reaches Judge Pollard's Heart.

Because she didn't like the looks of the man who introduced himself to her as her daughter's suitor, Mrs. Bessie Monsiske, keeper of a candy store at 1125 North Eighth street, took him by the coat collar and led him to the Carr Street Police Station, two blocks away.

There the ardent wooer gave his name as John Charles Mellon of 1450 North Nineteenth street. Acting Lieutenant Maloney, who entered a charge of disturbing the peace against Mellon, was severely rebuked by Judge Pollard of the Dayton Street Police Court when the case went to trial Monday.

Made Her Mad.

On the stand Mrs. Monsiske said:

"My daughter, Lena, is only 14 years old. Neighbors told me that a man has been taking her to the theater and the gardens. I never saw the man. Saturday night a stranger came into the store. He smiled and shoved out his hand and said: 'I'm Charley, shake. I go with your daughter, Lena.'

"That made me mad all through. I ran out from behind the counter and grabbed him and marched him to the station. The Lieutenant advised me to prefer a charge of disturbing the peace."

Mellon testified that he has known Lena five years and has frequently taken her to the theater.

Patrolman Not Responsible.

Patrolman Kennedy freely confessed that he had no part in the arrest of Mellon. "The Lieutenant just asked me to come here and see that the case went through all right," he said.

"I don't see any reason for this arrest," said Judge Pollard. "I am tempted to send out to that Lieutenant's house and have him brought into court forthwith. But I will not go that far. I will continue this case until tomorrow. The Marshall will issue subpenas for Acting Lieut. Maloney and for Lena Monsiske. So far, there is no evidence that this man has disturbed the peace of anyone."

FINED $10 FOR SWEARING AT WIFE IN CHILD'S PRESENCE

For swearing at his wife in their child's presence, Charles E. Gordner was fined $10 Monday by Judge Pollard. The wife, Louisa Gordner, was the witness against him. They are living apart, the wife at 906 North Twenty-second street.

She said that Gordner saw her at Twenty-second street and Franklin avenue, in front of a drug store, while Gracie, her child, aged 6, was inside drinking soda. When the child came out, the mother testified, Gordner picked it up and started into a saloon. She protested and a passerby prevented the father from carrying the girl into the [illegible]

U. S. COURT SAYS RAILWAYS SHOUL CHARGE 2 CEN

Hadley Wins a Temporary Vict but Final Decision Will be Ma Next Week.

M'PHERSON HOLDS FEDERA COURTS HAVE JURISDICT

Until Status of Restraining Order Obtain Railroads Shall Be Determined, Low F Legislation Should Be in Effect as an Experiment, Court Says.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 17.—Judge Smith McPher Red Oak, in the United States District Court here this afte handed down an opinion growing out of the conflict betwe Circuit Courts at Kansas City and St. Louis and the Federal here over the enforcement of the Missouri maximum freight cent passenger laws.

Judge McPherson retains and maintains jurisdiction to a cate the validity of the freight and passenger laws of Missouri Missouri railroads, to restrain the State officials from enforcing statutes, shall be issued, and if issued, whether it shall enjoi enforcement of either the passenger or freight laws. One or will, the Court says, be considered a week or more hence.

Judge McPherson said that his present view is that the law should be put in force until it can be ascertained by act perience whether 2 cents will be remunerative.

Judge McPherson's decision follows:

"The real question here is, has this Court jurisdiction over the fare law of 1907 of the Missouri Legislature declaring it unlawful to charge more than 2 cents per mile? A lesser question is whether the bills tendered for filing are supplemental bills to those filed in this court in the 18 cases two years ago and now pending before Mr. Schofield, the Master.

"I fully appreciate the responsibility resting upon me and the consequence to follow from the orders now to be made. If mistaken the mistakes are mine, even though I had but part of one day since the argument to reach these conclusions. Never has a case before me been argued with greater eloquence, logic and power than was done by counsel both for the State officers and for the 18 railways. Every phase of the case, direct and collateral, has been so illuminated that all possible questions are at the end of debate.

"What is the supplemental bill in equty? And wherein is th importance of defining it? Usually it is where there has been some change in the rights of the parties, which must be carried forward by a supplemental bill.

"One hundred and more years ago judges who had but little to do except play the role of mental acrobats and seek to refine and distinguish and to display an affected learning, and to discuss most gravely "the difference betwixt the west and northwest side of a hair," most elaborately set forth their views, as to original bills and amended bills and supplemental bills, and bills of review, and bills in the nature of review.

Slowness of Bygone Courts.

"Then it was that a chancery case lasted for many years. More than fifty years ago the Supreme Court recognized the folly of much of this, and by a code of rules adopted the system of fact pleading and left the old chancery practice in force only when the 94 rules adopted did not meet the situation that might arise, and by Rule 57 defined a supplemental bill. But that is not important, in my judgment. Whether this proceeding should be by original bill, or by supplemental bill, is of small consequence.

"If by original bill the railways had the right to file the same without notice, and the right to a restraining order without notice. If by supplemental bill the usual practice is to require notice. And in either case it is discretionary with the Judge to allow a restraining order. Nor is this to the prejudice of anyone.

"As I listened on Saturday to the argument, I was carried back to the days of 1801-9. And I recalled that in every instance, save the troubles of 1861-5, the United States courts have, in a dignified way, settled the disputes and law-abiding people acquiesced and the lawless element were compelled to submit.

"That the fixing of rates by the Legislature is presumptively correct, all concede. That it is a legislative act, all agree. But that, such rates must be reasonably remunerative, cannot longer eb discussed. The railways are entitled to cost and a reasonable profit, and no fair-minded man disputes it. How to arrive at the cost and reasonable profit is a most difficult problem. But it must be ascertained, and this ascertainment can [illegible] be by ju [illegible]

SHE REJECTED PERSISTENT AMERICAN SUITOR AND MARRIED A TALENTED JAPANESE ARTIST

MRS. HENRY OTOMO.

AMERICAN GIRL PROUD OF JAPANESE HUSBAND

Miss Alice Alfred and Henry Otomo Met First While Working at Japanese Exhibit at the World's Fair.

"Henry couldn't be any better if he were white and an American," says Mrs. Alice Otomo, a pretty young woman, of her Japanese husband.

"I intend to live in the United States for the rest of my life, and I want to have an American wife," says Otomo.

Otomo won his bride against the persistent wooing of an American—Thomas Burns, to whom her wedding will be both a surprise and a disappointment. Burns, Mrs. Otomo says, had been a suitor for three years. He knew of Otomo's courtship and opposed it with all the warmth and arguments of love. The answer to all his prayers and protests is her new name—Mrs. Henry Otomo.

Mrs. Otomo, then Miss Alice Alfred, met her husband when both were employed by a Japanese exhibitor at the World's Fair. Otomo had just arrived from Sacramento and was working by day and studying art by night.

When the World's Fair had closed and he and Miss Alfred went their different ways they continued their acquaintance. That became courtship on Otomo's part after a time and their engagement followed. Otomo says he delayed his marriage to enable him to establish himself as a fresco artist. Now that he has commissions to keep him busy for two years, he says, he can afford the luxury of a pretty American wife.

Otomo is now engaged in decorating a new residence at 26 North King's highway. He and his bride will live there after their return from Niagara Falls to view a spectacle that it has been Otomo's ambition to behold, he says, ever since he came to the United States.

Mrs. Otomo has been living at 1425 Franklin avenue. Her parents, she says, are dead. She is 20 years old. Otomo is 25 and has been in the United States 13 years. He is quick, intelligent and reads, writes and speaks English with unusual correctness.

On reaching Clayton Saturday Otomo and Miss Alfred had some difficulty in finding Recorder Wetzel, who had left his office before their arrival. He returned to the Court House and issued a license. Otomo and Miss Alfred were married in the Recorder's office, the Rev. William B. North, pastor of the Clayton M. E. Church, performing the ceremony.

MINISTER'S PARDON UNLIKELY

Girl Stands by Charges Against Rev. Herberg.

Pardon for Rev. Marcellus Herberg, who was sentenced to eight months in the Workhouse for "mashing" and drunkenness, is rendered improbable because of a declaration of his innocence made by Miss Lillie Stevens of Decatur, Ill. Miss Stevens, with Miss Subrina Dillihunt of Decatur, caused Rev. Herberg's arrest and testified against him in the City Hall Police Court.

Later Miss Stevens told a Post-Dispatch reporter that Rev. Herberg had not made any improper advances toward her or Miss Dillihunt.

Mayor Wells received Monday from Chief of Police Mason of Decatur a letter in which it is said that Miss Stevens stands by her original charges against Rev. Herberg.

Rev. Herberg was confined in the Insane Asylum from June until October, 1902. An examination made by Dr. Scott, Chief Dispensary Physician, Saturday, showed that he is now sane.

"Why, honey, what's the matter?" said Mrs. Julia Wolbrinck, when she saw her husband packing his clothes, with the evident intention of leaving their home.

"I ain't your honey any more," said the husband, and he picked up his satchel and departed.

This parting, not of the "sweet sorrow" variety, took place two years ago. Mrs. Wolbrinck told Judge Withrow about it Monday, and was granted t, in the absence [illegible]

WENT TO TEA
And It Wound Her Bobbin.

Tea drinking frequently affects people as badly as coffee. A lady in Salisbury, Md., says that she was compelled to abandon the use of coffee a good many years ago, because it threatened to ruin her health and that she went over to tea drinking, but finally, she had dyspepsia so bad that she had lost twenty-five pounds and no food seemed to agree with her.

She further says: "At this time I was induced to take up the famous food drink, Postum, and was so much pleased with the results that I have never been without it since. I commenced to improve at once, regained my twenty-five pounds of flesh and went some beyond my usual weight.

"I know Postum to be good, pure, and healthful, and there never was an article, and never will be, I believe, that does so surely take the place of coffee, as Postum Food Coffee. The beauty of it all is that it is satisfying and wonderfully nourishing. I feel as if I could not sing its praises too loud." Read "The Road to Wellville"

SNAKE SCARES GIRLS IN A CAR

Capt. Tom Martin, instructor in swimming at the Missouri Athletic Club, is willing to bear witness that the serpent which tempted Eve wasn't a water moccasin. From the actions of a dozen young ladies Sunday afternoon on a Frisco train he feels morally certain no woman would make friends with a water moccasin.

The Captain sat in a car with his swimming squad, returning from "The Saddle" Club. A party of young women who had been visitors at the Paddle and Saddle for the day, and some men who had been fishing in the Meramec were also in the car. The men carried baskets with their "kills," and it is supposed the moccasin crawled from one of these.

A young woman near the front of the car let loose a sudden shriek which startled the other passengers from their calm, and the reptile, which had frightened her by brushing against her foot, moved to the center of the aisle, coiling defensively.

Capt. Martin put the broad sole of one shoe on the snake's head, caught its tail when it uncoiled, and swung its head dexterously against an iron bench, then tossed it from a window.

SEEKING TO PLACE NEW LID

Police Board Wants to Restrain Brewery Workers' Association.

President Stewart of the Police Board appeared in Judge Allen's court Monday to argue against longer immunity from the "lid" for the Brewery Workers' Association, which now enjoys Sunday beer privileges under a temporary injunction issued against the board last January. The association occupies the old Liederkranz building, Thirteenth and Chouteau avenue.

Postponement was asked by the association. The reason offered was that August Priesterbach, president of the organization, was in Europe. The board's attorneys objected, saying that Priesterbach was not a material witness.

"This association has been violating the law since last January," said President Stewart to the court. Judge Allen took the matter under advisement.

TEXAS CAPTAIN BUYS PLANTERS

James I. Lawlor of Houston Purchases the Interest of Col. Landrum for $200,000.

WILL GET A NEW LEASE

Lawlor Is Now Contesting Uncle's Will Here to Get $40,000 Estate.

Capt. James L. Lawlor, proprietor of a hotel at Houston, Tex., has completed negotiations for the purchase of the Planters Hotel within the next five days.

It is understood Capt. Lawlor has agreed to pay Col. Landrum, president and controlling stockholder of the company, $200,000 for his interests, which include a two-years' lease on the hotel, the building proper being owned by a syndicate of St. Louis capitalists.

Assistant Manager Cochran told a Post-Dispatch reporter Monday that the final transfer of the property would not be completed until June 21, when an option obtained by Capt. Lawlor expires.

Capt. Lawlor is now a guest at the Planters. He said to a reporter that he could not discuss his plans at this time, except to say he is seeking the Planters.

"In the event that my mission here is successful," said he, "I have been assured that at the expiration of the present lease, held by Col. Landrum, I can get a new lease on the hotel for 10 years.

"Any other information had better come from Col. Landrum."

Landrum Long Dissatisfied.

Col. Landrum refused to be seen. Ever since he took charge of the Planters Hotel two years ago reports have been persistent that Col. Landrum was tired of his bargain.

Col. Landrum is not an experienced hotel man, having been a distiller in Kentucky prior to coming to St. Louis. Soon after his arrival here, Col. Landrum became prominent socially. Gov. Folk made him a Colonel on his military staff.

Col. Landrum bought out Henry Weaver, who had been identified with the management of the Planters Hotel from the time the new building was erected in 1892.

The Landrum regime has been marked by frequent clashes between members of the Planters Board of Directors. Following one of these tilts three of the directors resigned.

Wetmore Fought Landrum.

Col. Moses C. Wetmore, who held a large block of stock in the hotel company and is still the possessor of several hundred shares, has opposed Col. Landrum from the outset.

Some of Col. Landrum's critics are now opposing the contemplated purchase of the hotel by Capt. Lawlor, who is backed by the Commonwealth Trust Co. of St. Louis and John H. Kirby, president of the Kirby Lumber Co. of Texas.

"I have had a number of business matters under consideration here," said Capt. Lawlor Monday. "My wife's uncle, Milo Brown, died here about eighteen months ago, leaving an estate valued at from $35,000 to $50,000, all of which was bequeathed to St. Columbkill's Church.

"The will is now in the Probate Court and I have employed an attorney to contest it on the ground that Brown's estate should as a matter of justice have gone to me. I assisted Mr. Brown in many ways financially."

MEDICINE BOTTLE A CLEW

Police Investigate Man's Death in Unused Room.

Deputy Coroner Lloyd Monday checked the inquest into the death of a man whose skeleton was found in an unused room at Sixth street and Clark avenue and asked Chief of Detectives Smith to make an investigation.

The skeleton lay on the floor of the room when it was discovered last Friday. Near it, on a window sill, was a bottle of blood medicine. Marks on the clothing and label on the medicine bottle will be used by the police as clews to the man's identity.

OWEN QUITS $2100 CITY JOB

Deputy City Register Resigns to Go Into Business for Himself.

John B. Owen, political wizard of the Sixth Ward and elsewhere, is going to retire to private life after a long service in the Federal and municipal governments. This surcease from the cares of public position is going to cost him $2100 a year. That is, he has offered his resignation as Deputy City Register.

Owen will start a tax and license bureau, as head of which he will sell the expert knowledge of taxation he has gained while in office. City Register Regan has not yet named a successor to Owen, but announces that one of the clerks in his office will get the plum.

Wife Fails to Kill Herself.

Mrs. Ida Lawrence of 2021 Olive street, who drank carbolic acid at her home Sunday night, is at the City Hospital and will recover. Her husband was apprised of her action by the screams of one of the children. He found the wife unconscious. Grief over the death of a child which she lost seven years ago, he said, was the cause of her desire to die.

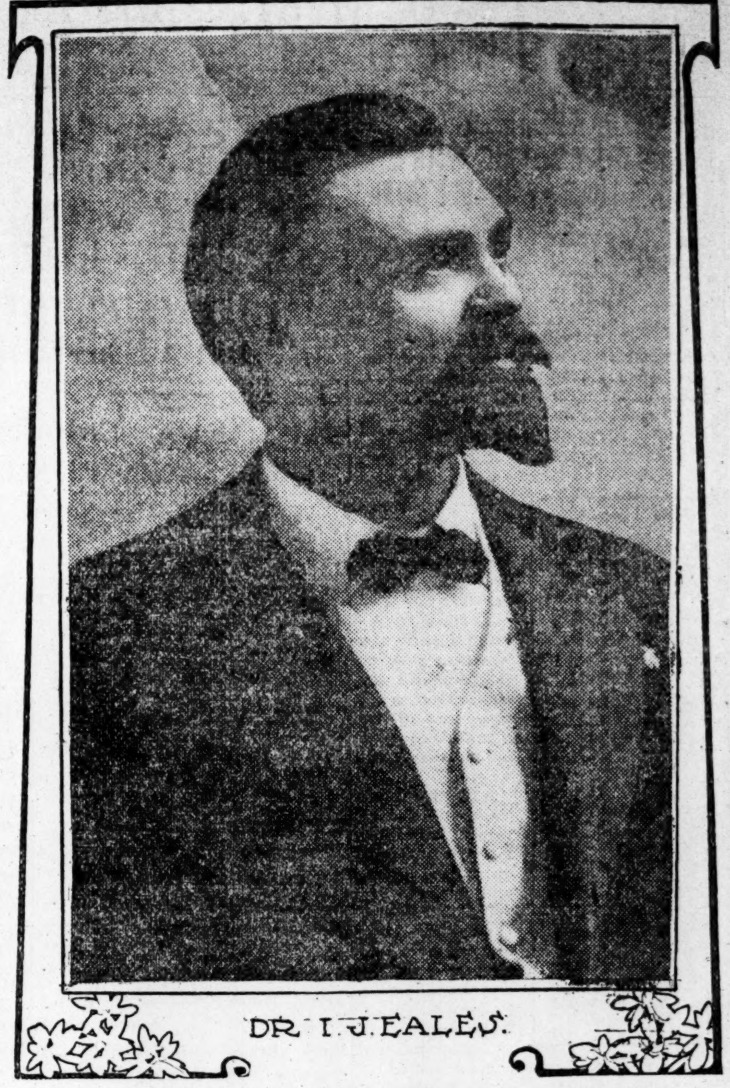
PHYSICIAN WHO HAS NOT TAKEN ANY FOOD IN SEVENTEEN DAYS



DR. I. J. EALES.

Belleville Man Will Satisfy His Appetite With Breakfast Food Just as Soon as He Has a Desire to Eat.

Dr. I. J. Eales, the fasting Belleville physician, weighed in at the close of his seventeenth foodless day of starving Monday. He tipped the scales at 173½ pounds, including his smile of satisfaction.

"Poor Mr. Taft," he murmured, as he sniffed the fragrance of breakfast.

But he did not feel tempted by the odors of food. Indeed, food is the veriest bagatelle to Dr. Eales. He is waiting to feel hungry and will not eat until he has an appetite. In order to test himself he purposely has put his nose into contact with the warm incense of cooking steaks. He has allowed his eye to rest thoughtfully on fried potatoes and muffins. But the doctor is not hungry.

Will Satisfy His Appetite.

"I expect to eat as soon as I have the desire to," he said Monday, "and I am looking for that desire to manifest itself almost any time now. No, I shall not pitch into a hearty meal at once. I have some experiments to make. I am fasting for others as well as myself."

Meanwhile the doctor was losing flesh every minute, but he had 192 pounds to start with and still had 173½. He calls that his "predigested food, put into storage years ago."

"My first meal will be of breakfast food," said he. "I shall take it into my perfectly impartial stomach. I shall see if the adwriter or the comic paper jester speaks the truth. A breakfast food that nourishes and satisfies me after nearly three weeks of fasting will be pretty good stuff."

Fights the Beef Trust.

The doctor is achieving a great reputation in Belleville as the inventor of the only certain method of fighting the Beef Trust.

"Just think of it," exclaimed one enthusiastic person, "when the price of chops and steaks soars, all the doctor has to do is merely to say, 'Very well, I will not eat.' What does the advanced cost of living matter to him? I'll tell you, the Eales idea is the greatest thing that ever was suggested to a long-suffering people."

RECEIVERS TO END BUSINESS OF EXPRESS CO.

Affairs of East Side Concern Will Be Wound Up by Court Order.

FRAUD IS NOT SHOWN

Contract With Railway Forfeited Because Its Terms Were Violated.

After finding that there has been no fraud practiced on the Electric Railway Express Co., Judge Reynolds Monday ordered the receivers of the company, John T. Moore and George C. Hitchcock, to pay its debts and wind up its affairs.

The decision was rendered in the suit of Henry E. Trendley, Taylor R. Young and Henry A. Gautier, stockholders in the express company, against the Illinois Traction Co., the East St. Louis & Suburban Railway Co., the Electric Railway Express Co., J. M. Allen, president of the last-named company, and Frederick E. Allen, C. H. Starkle, J. J. Weingaertner and J. F. Johnston, directors.

The plaintiffs charged fraud and conspiracy in the making of a contract between the express company and the East St. Louis & Suburban Railway Co., alleging that the contract which was to supersede another contract previously in force, was less favorable to the express company. It was charged that the officers named had conspired against the express company in the interest of the railway company.

Annulment Asked.

During the progress of the case an appeal was made for the formal annulment of the contract between the two companies on the ground that the express company had failed to make payments and file statements of business required by the contract.

In rendering his decision, Judge Reynolds said: "I am satisfied there was no such fraud, misrepresentation, or conspiracy as would justify the Court in saying that the modification of the relations between the companies by the contract of Aug. 10, 1906, should be set aside."

No Conspiracy Shown.

"The relations between Mr. Allen and his co-directors," he added, "are matters with which the East St. Louis & Suburban Railway has no concern. The evidence here does not show that it entered into any conspiracy or even drove a hard bargain as against the Electric Railway Express Co. or its directors. Whatever the relations may be and whatever the status may be as between the directors and among the directors and stockholders of the Electric Railway Express Co. and the East St. Louis & Suburban Railway Co. is not concerned in it."

The contract was forfeited, however on the ground of the express company's failure to comply with its conditions. The company is capitalized at $100,000. Its cars have been traveling over the East St. Louis & Suburban Railway out of East St. Louis to points all along the line of that road.

Farmer Attacked by Horse-traders.

TECUMSEH, Neb., June 15.—Two traveling horsetraders are in jail here on a charge of assaulting Moses Roberts, an aged farmer. Roberts feared the strange horses would spread disease to stock in his field.

STEVE ADAMS IN LIMELIGHT IN HAYWOOD CASE

Appearance in Courtroom to Be One of Most Dramatic Incidents of the Trial.

MAY REFUSE TO TALK

Possible That Confession Confirming Story of Orchard Will Be Rejected.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOISE, Idaho, June 17.—Steve Adams is the man of the moment, the figure that is attracting the widest interest in the final effort of the State to hang William D. Haywood.

Adams will be ushered into the courtroom Tuesday or Wednesday by the prosecution.

What he will do, or not do, will create one of the most dramatic situations of the trial.

The defense, which is in close touch with him and his family, assert that he will refuse to be sworn and there will be nothing to do but remand him back to jail.

John Worm, the Wallace attorney who represents Adams, and who accompanied him here, confirms the situation as seen by the defense.

The special counsel for the State, Hawley and Borah, declare that Adams may refuse to take the oath, yet in the same breath they expect to get his confession before the jury.

Under the law of the State the confession cannot be introduced if he refuses to be sworn. Should he be sworn and then refuse to testify the confession can be put in evidence.

Confession Is Startling.

The Adams confession is quite as startling as that of Orchard. He confirms the leading features of Orchard's story and gives details of murders and murder plots in which he was an active principal and in which Orchard had no concern. His action is of importance to both sides.

Mrs. Adams has been closely associated with the Haywood and Pettibone families since she has been in Boise.

For a week Adams has had unrestricted conversation with Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone in jail.

If he refuses to take the oath the State will turn him over to Colorado and he will be taken to Telluride, where, it is said, there is a much stronger case of murder against him than in Wallace.

Soon after Orchard confessed Adams was arrested on his ranch in Oregon, brought here and placed in a cell with Orchard in the Idaho Penitentiary.

Orchard had promised to "work on him" and try and induce him to confess. Adams did confess, and, among other crimes told of the atrocious way he killed Arthur Collins, superintendent of the Smuggler Union mine in Telluride. Collins was shot to death in 1903 while sitting in his dining room playing cards with friends. The shot came through a window on a dark night.

After his confession Adams was taken to Telluride, showed where he stood when he fired the shot, where he had buried his gun on the scene and pointed to the spot and the weapon was unearthed.

He corroborated Orchard's story of the Independence depot explosion and admitted that he assisted in pulling the wire that exploded the mine and killed 14 nonunion men.

He confirmed the hunt for Peabody and Judges Gabbert and Goddard with sawed-off shotguns.

He was taken to Pocatello, Idaho, where he said he had buried the "Pettibone dope" with which he had been furnished to blow up a car of nonunion men who were on their way to Cripple Creek.

Mission a Failure.

His mission was a failure and so was the "dope" hunting expedition. The remains of a bottle said to have contained it was all that was found.

Soon after returning to the Penitentiary, Adams was visited by a wealthy uncle.

He next repudiated his entire confession. He declared that it was extorted from him and was not true.

Among the murders he had admitted was the killing of the claim jumpers, Tyler and Bonle, in the St. Joseph country, Northern Idaho.

The crimes were committed three years ago, and no attention was paid to them at the time. Public opinion places little value on any claim jumper's life. Jack Simpkins owned the claim that was jumped, and being of a retiring nature he instructed Steve to "go up there and bump off them jumpers."

When the two men were killed all the other claim jumpers in the country fled. Steve returned and reported that he had "cleaned up" the claim jumpers and Simpkins could stay away from his claim as long as he pleased.

After Adams repudiated his confession the Idaho authorities succeeded in finding the body of Tyler. They placed Adams on trial for the murder. The State made a fatal mistake as to the date of the crime. Adams on the stand at Wallace again repudiated his confession. The jury disagreed.

Both State and defense appear sanguine regarding the result of the trial.

"The State has not connected Haywood with the Steunenberg murder except by Orchard," said Darrow. "Corroborative evidence was promised and so far it has not been forthcoming."

"The State has proved a general conspiracy to murder various persons, and the Steunenberg murder was only an incident," said Hawley.

Another general conspiracy will be charged by the defense in its opening. The Mine Owners' Association and detectives will be accused of conspiracy to take the life of the defendants.

The first witness for the defense will be ex-officials of the Western Federation of Miners who were in at the birth of the organization.

They will testify as to the objects of the organization and the rules and bylaws governing it.

Haywood will go on the stand and deny most of Orchard's testimony which involves him.

Former Lieutenant-Governor Coates of Colorado left for Denver Saturday night, where he will round up 70 witnesses from that State and bring them here.

Attorney Miller is in San Francisco taking depositions in the Bradley explosion affair. The State is represented at the proceedings by Attorney Van Duyn of Caldwell.

The defense will attempt to show that Orchard did not always lose in his gambling operations, that he frequently won and sometimes deposited money with Pettibone for safekeeping.

The State announces that the re-direct examination will not consume over three hours.

Accompanying the Colorado decision denying Moyer a writ of habeas corpus, Borah will ask that the decision of the Supreme Court of Colorado overruling the eight-hour law be allowed in.

"Both can go in as decisions, but not as law," said Richardson.

GIRL OF 15 WINS A MEDAL AS PIANIST

MISS RUTH JACKSON

YOUNGEST POST-GRADUATE PIANIST IS 15 YEARS OLD

Miss Ruth Jackson Wins a Medal and Will Try for Another Next Year.

With the season well along and the number of "youngest" post-graduates growing with the setting of very sun, Miss Ruth Jackson of East St. Louis is the latest claimant to the distinction of being the youngest post-graduate of the year. She is 15 years old and will complete her post-graduate course in music and receive a gold medal next Friday night at the Weltner Conservatory of Music.

She graduated and received her diploma as a pianist last year, and expects to return next year and try for a diamond medal at the completion of the three years' course. She has studied music for seven years almost without relaxation, but expects to take a month's vacation before entering upon her next season's studies. She will leave July 1 for St. Paul and lake resorts, returning about Aug. 1.

Miss Jackson is the daughter of C. P. Jackson and lives with her parents at 921 Market avenue, East St. Louis. As secretary of the Sunday School of the Bond Avenue M. E. Church and organist of the Epworth League, she finds a brief rest from her musical study. She has liberally extended invitations to her East St. Louis friends to the graduating exercises, and many will visit the school to see her receive the honors she has won.

One of Haywood's Witnesses Dies.

CANON CITY, Colo., June 17.—Charles W. King, an important witness for the defense in the Haywood trial at Boise, Idaho, died from neuralgia of the heart yesterday. Bloodhounds belonging to King were used in tracking after the dynamiting of the Independence depot. An hour after his death a telegram addressed to King summoning him to Boise was received.

RELIGIOUS REVIVAL TO SOLVE LABOR PROBLEMS

Rev. F. W. Russell Deplores Socialism and Declares Church Will Bring Social Message.

Rev. Dr. Francis W. Russell, pastor of West Presbyterian Church, in his Sunday evening sermon declared that the next great religious revival would have the social problem as its keynote. His subject was "The Labor Movement and the Church."

He scored the bitterness between capital and labor and the growth of socialism, saying that if socialism grew as fast in the next eight years as in the past four the Socialists would elect a President of the United States. The Socialists, he said, had set themselves against the church.

The labor problem thus created, he said, is one of the social problems which the next revival would affect. Its great idea, he said, would be man's duty to his fellows and the Christian doctrine of love would drive away the present bitterness between classes and interests.

The church could not, he said, deal with the economic or wage side of the labor question.

NOISY CHARIVARI FOLLOWS SECRET FERGUSON WEDDING

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stein Promise to Serenade With Band.

Mrs. Ida Schute of Ferguson and Charles Stein, a middle-aged bachelor who has a big farm near Ferguson and takes an active interest in St. Louis County politics, were secretly married at Alton last Tuesday, and their friends have just found it out.

The discovery resulted Saturday night in a charivari party, at which a score of friends surrounded Mrs. Schute's home, where the couple is living, and startled quiet Ferguson with the din of horns and tin cans. Not satisfied with this, the charivari party announced that it would have a brass band on hand Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Stein are awaiting the fulfillment of this threat with trepidation. She is young and pretty. It was not known to their friends that they were contemplating marriage, and the

PASTOR FLAYS CHURCH; WOMEN SAY HE'S RIGHT

Rev. Columbus Polk Goodson Says There Are Savages in Pews.

MINISTERS DYING OFF

Clergyman Declares They Have to Do $5 Work on $1 Salary.

Prominent women members of the King's Highway Presbyterian Church applaud the emphatic attack made by Rev. Columbus J. Goodson in a sermon Sunday on society, in which he declared that "savages in silks and satins sometimes sanctimoniously sit in the cushioned seats of the synagogues of the Sabbath." They approve his strictures upon modern tendencies and methods, and told a Post-Dispatch reporter Monday that they believed Pastor Goodson to be the kind to remedy the conditions of which he complains.

Mrs. George F. Bergfeld of 5171 Cabanne avenue said that she agreed with Rev. Mr. Goodson that theater going and card playing are a waste of time and effort. She thought it would require aggressive work to force church people and society people away from such practices.

Women Praise Dr. Goodson.

In proof of what Rev. Mr. Goodson has accomplished, Mrs. Bergfeld said he had increased the membership of the church in four years from 12 to 500, and had built up a guild of 175.

Mrs. Samuel Whitfield of 5032 Fairmont avenue described Pastor Goodson as the type of the new minister he says is so urgently needed to cope with evil modern conditions. Much good has been accomplished, she said, by his unique methods, and she gave her earnest indorsement to them.

"Too many people, too many church members, are engaging in sports and are found in places of amusement that are perilous," said Rev. Mr. Goodson. "The theater may be a source of legitimate entertainment, but everybody knows that it more frequently appeals to vulgar impulse and animalism than being an exhibition of real art.

"Present-day gambling—universally prevalent—is one of the greatest perils of our social integrity. College students bet on their sports, clerks play the races, business men of all classes buy stocks on the margin, husbands play poker, and wives play bridge. The nerve-racking anxiety makes the entire moral self-degenerate."

The church, Dr. Goodson declared a failure today and a failure in the past. He said that more ministers die than enter the ministry every year, all because they are expected to meet $5 conditions with $1 pay.

Need New Social Life.

Dr. Goodson said there is need of a new social life in the church, and that no Christian can have a Sunday creed, a home creed and a downtown creed. When this is realized, he continued, corporation directors will understand that there is no use "starving orphans to endow educational institutions, for there will be no children to educate if methods of the irreligious are to have sway.

"If in these things the men and women who are in our churches will co-operate, the day is not distant when the sick will be healed, the poor evangelized, the hungry fed; men will cease to regard life cheaper than dividends, and they will be found protecting workingmen from the deadly machinery, children from the death of factories, and their competitors from starvation."

Young Millionaire Does Things.

Edward T. Thomas of New York probably has achieved more than any other American millionaire as young as he. When only 24 he was a member of the Stock Exchange and a bank president at 28. Last year with several friends he put up $2,000,000 to finance a 400,000 bale cotton pool, the largest pool ever formed in cotton speculation. In the horse racing, motor racing and automobile world he is particularly active and daring.

GIVES EXPERT ADVICE TO DYSPEPSIA SUFFERERS.

In a recent number of the Physicians and Surgeons Journal there appeared a very comprehensive article by one of the foremost practitioners of the country on defective digestion. He claimed that too little attention is given to this malady, which, while not extremely serious in itself, it quickly leads to very disastrous complications. In fact, that the majority of diseases have their origin in the poisons that are taken up by the blood from the fermentation of food in the stomach. He also gave the formula for a mixture which he wished to call the attention to its wonderful effectiveness in quickly restoring the stomach and bowel tract to their normal condition and the stopping of belching, sourness, headaches, languor, etc. The formula is as follows: "Two ounces Essence of Pepsin; three ounces Syrup of Ginger; one ounce Catandir Compound. These to be mixed well and used in doses of from one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal also at bedtime for the first few days."

A well-known local druggist when asked about this formula stated that it is prescribed by the best physicians here, and that while harmless and pleasant to take it is extremely effective.

WEBSTER, WHO SLEPT FOR 77 DAYS, IS DEAD

PRAYED BEFORE DEATH

Though He Never Opened His Eyes He Knew End Was Near.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 17.—The "Sleeping Marvel," Thomas C. Webster, who dropped asleep April 1 on a Union Pacific train between Denver & Kansas City and for 77 days did not open his eyes, is dead at the General Hospital.

A committee of doctors said his sleep was feigned. Some persons claimed he was suffering from melancholia. But against passing from his prolonged earthly slumber into the last sleep it was evident that Webster had a protest.

Though the only times he had ever been on his feet at the hospital were when attendants forced him to walk and supported him, yet the night before he died he rose alone and knelt in prayer, with his clasped hands in front of his face, beside the cot of a neighboring patient. Even then his eyes were closed.

Only two hours before his death at noon yesterday a still more remarkable thing happened. He opened his eyes and kept them open, as if unwilling to start on such a journey unadvised. The will not to wake or look upon the world was abandoned, but he clung to his prerogative not to converse with the world, and, though his eyes were open when he took his last nourishment, he would not talk.

Thomas C. Webster was a well-to-do mountain farmer at Horseshoe Bend, Idaho, and was en route to visit a brother at Gainesville, Ga., when, just out of Denver, he suffered a violent nervous attack. When given an opiate for this by a physician on the train he promptly fell asleep. His sleep continuing until he reached Kansas City, the police here were asked to take charge of him at the depot.

At the "Helping Hand," where he was taken, it was found impossible to arouse him and the police ambulance took him to the hospital, where he has slept since April 1.

Feed Baby's Furnace

"The infant, like all small animals, has a large extent of surface in proportion to it's bulk; thus it tends to lose heat rapidly and requires an abundant supply of the chief body fuel—fat. If the different (food) ingredients be not supplied in due proportion, disorder of health inevitably follows."

So says Dr. Hutchinson of the London Hospital—a world-wide authority.

He shows, in his book about infant ds, that most of them contain too ttle fat—which should serve as fuel for protection against catarrh of lungs and bowels, keeping baby cozy and rosy.

There must not be too much fat, or diarrhoea will result.

LOVE MADE UP OF TRIFLES; EVEN FRECKLES MAY WIN

Both Men and Women Swayed More by Physical Characteristics Than by Beauties of Mind, Educator Declares.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, June 17.—Precisely what it is—what attribute or physical characteristic—in the youth or maiden, the man or woman, that most attracts one of the opposite sex, is a problem of which Dr. G. Stanley Hall, professor of psychology and president of Clark University, Worcester, Mass., has set out to find the solution.

To this end he has taken a census of young lovers, with a view to learning what in each case has most endeared to him or her the particular object of their affection.

It was Dr. Hall who recently declared that 50 per cent of the college women failed to marry, thus contributing to race suicide.

The complete result of this census of lovers Dr. Hall has not yet given to the public, but he has made known an abstract of what he has learned.

With hundreds of lovers heard from, Dr. Hall states that the characteristics specified by them are, in the order of their frequency, as follows:

Eyes, hair, size or stature, feet, brows, complexion, cheeks, form of head, throat, ears, chin, hands, neck, nose, fingernails and contour of face.

Which is to say that more of these lovers interrogated have found the loved one's eyes or hair the chief attraction than anything else.

The women replying to Dr. Hall's questions have also specified these charms in the men they loved best:

Regular teeth, broad shoulders and white teeth and most popular among men have been long lashes and arched brows.

According to some of those replying, a retrousee nose, freckles and a long neck have been the chief charms.

The voice cuts an important figure among the charms. With some it is a high voice; with others a low voice. Even a lisp has been stated as a charm.

Laughter, carriage, gait, gesture, movements of the eye, pose of head and shoulders have also been specified in the replies.

VETERAN PRINTER DIES AT HOME NEAR WRIGHT CITY

Long Employed in St. Louis, but Failing Health Took Him to the Country.

Rudolph F. Straube, a pioneer printer of St. Louis, died Sunday afternoon at his home, "Red Gables," near Wright City, Mo. He was 66 years old.

Mr. Straube was born in Berlin, March 9, 1841, but came to this country with his parents at an early age. At the age of 14 he began work in a printing office, where he was employed for 17 consecutive years. In 1871, upon the advice of a physician, he left the printing office and purchased a fruit farm in Osage County. He is survived by a wife and three daughters, one of whom, Mrs. R. Stierlin, lives in St. Louis.

The funeral will be conducted from his home, near Wright City, Tuesday afternoon.

Watchman Is Found Dead.

John Kilcullen, night watchman of the pipe yards of the Water Department, King's highway and Natural Bridge Road, was found dead in his office Sunday morning by James Walsh an employe. He was 45 years old and lived at 2112 Division street.

STRANGER SHOOTS "EDDIE" GUERIN

Copyright, 1907, by the Press Pub. Co. (New York World.)

LONDON, June 17.—Another remarkable chapter has been added to the life story of Eddie Guerin, notorious Chicago cracksman.

On Saturday night—a little more than 24 hours after Lord Chief Justice Alberstone had refused to extradite him at the request of France, which had sent him to Devil's Island, and he had escaped—Guerin was walking with a woman in the Bloomsbury district, not far from the British Museum, when they were encountered by a man and a woman who had driven up in a cab.

A fierce altercation ensued, which suddenly ended in the strange man drawing a revolver and firing at Guerin twice. The second shot struck Guerin in the foot and he fell, shouting "I'm shot!"

His assailant fled, discharging the remaining chambers of his revolver as he ran, until he was caught by passing pedestrians. Guerin was taken to a hospital, where the bullet was extracted.

Though he says he knows his assailant, he refuses to make any further statement, and the whole affair is shrouded in mystery.

The man, who is now a prisoner, gives the name of "Charles Smith."

According to the police, the woman with Smith is known as "Chicago May," her other name being Churchill. Both are said to be well known in the West.

At the scene of the shooting there was picked up a large clasp knife, which it is said was carried by the Churchill woman.

Guerin's companion is known here as Emily Skinner, and it is believed that she is his wife.

Guerin told an interviewer that "Chicago May" is the woman who betrayed him to the police last year.

He first met her in London in 1900, and took her to Paris, where, in company with a notorious German-American thief known as "Dutch Gus," they both were tried for the burglary of the American Express Co.'s office.

The two men were sentenced to Devil's Island for life, the women getting five years.

When Guerin arrived in London after his escape, 13 months ago, he met "Chicago May" in their old haunts and in a drunken moment she "gave him up."

BLACK HAND DYNAMITES HOUSE

Attempt Is Made to Blow Up a Home in Chicago's "Little Italy."

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

CHICAGO, June 17.—A dynamite explosion yesterday partially wrecked Cosimo Bruscato's flat building, 64 Milton avenue, and spread terror throughout that section of "Little Italy." Forty-five people were asleep in the various apartments at the time, but all escaped injury.

The outrage is laid to the "black hand," in furtherance of a plot to extort $1000 from Bruscato.

The explosion made a fearful noise, and people came running from all directions, while the frightened residents of the building jumped out of windows in their frantic scramble for safety. A large bore for powder was found in the rear of the building and a man was seen running from there immediately after the alarm. He was pursued and fired at by several policemen, but escaped.

"BRYAN THE MAN FOR PRESIDENT"

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—Chairman Griggs of the Democratic Congressional Committee believes the nomination of Bryan for the presidency is inevitable, and that as the time for holding the convention draws near no other man will be suggested. In discussing this matter he said:

"All this talk of nominating a Southern man for the presidency next year is nonsense. There is only one man in sight to lead Democracy next year, and his name is William Jennings Bryan

"If he wants the nomination, that's all there will be to it. Bryan dominates the Democratic as thoroughly as President Roosevelt controls the Republican party.

"I don't see anybody in sight but Bryan, provided, of course, he wants the nomination.

"I don't know whether he wants to run or not. I have not heard anything from him on the nomination, and so far as I know he has not taken anybody into his confidence on the subject.

"Charley Culbertson would make a good President; so would Hoke Smith, John Sharp Williams and Joe Bailey. They are all good men and big enough for the job.

"Bryan is too strong with the people to be set aside by a clique of leaders. We have got to depend on Bryan to settle the nomination. He can have it himself, but he can't dictate the nomination of somebody else.

"The issue will be the tariff, the trusts and anti-centralization of government."

Asked for Tip, Was Stabbed.

As the result of jokingly asking for a "tip" for information given, Ollie Bozdeck, 19 years old, of 1912 South Twelfth street, was stabbed in the right shoulder. He with several companions was standing in front of his home when a stranger asked where a neighbor lived. He was told and then the boy asked for a "tip." A fight followed.

CAR HIT SURREY; SEVEN ARE HURT

Mr. and Mrs. Eisen and Five Children Thrown to Pavement by Collision.

A surrey in which Samuel Eisen of 1202 North Seventh street was driving with his wife and six children was struck by a street car and upset at Sixth and Biddle streets at 3:30 p. m. Sunday. The occupants were thrown to the pavement in front of the car, and only Annie, the 1-year-old baby in its mother's arms, escaped injury. Eisen's left shoulder was bruised and his wife's arms were hurt while protecting her baby. Samuel, 5 years old, was bruised; Abe, aged 7, received scalp wounds; Libbie, aged 8, was hurt near the right eye; Rosie, 11, injured her left knee, and Jennie, 12, was bruised on the right knee.

Woman's Nightmare

No woman's happiness can be complete without children; it is her nature to love and want them as much so as it is to love the beautiful and pure. The critical ordeal through which the expectant mother must pass, however, is so fraught with dread, pain, suffering and danger, that the very thought of it fills her with apprehension and horror. There is no necessity for the reproduction of life to be either painful or dangerous. The use of Mother's Friend so prepares the system for the coming event that it is safely passed without any danger. This great and wonderful remedy is always applied externally, and has carried thousands of women through the trying crisis without suffering.

SUICIDE BURIED WITHOUT COFFIN

Coroner Orders Body Dropped Into Hole by Tree He Hanged Himself From.

A young man, found hanging Sunday from a tree over the Mississippi River near Jefferson Barracks, made death doubly certain, trusting to drown should the clothes line about his neck break. A Coroner's jury, which returned a suicide verdict, was unable to throw any light on the cause of the death.

In the young man's pocket was found a card, on which was written: "Tony Dresel, member No. 13, Clay Miners' and Helpers' Union No. 189, St. Louis, Sept. 1, 1904."

Union men in St. Louis are endeavoring to establish the young man's identity by means of this card.

By order of Coroner Bracy a hole was dug under the tree to which the body was hanging, and the body was placed in it without a casket and covered with dirt.

Heim's Orchestra at Cherokee Garden.

Heim's Orchestra drew good crowds to Cherokee Garden yesterday and was heard in programs of much attractiveness. The offerings for the week are of exceptionally pleasing quality. Wednesday night has been named as "press night," when representatives of local newspapers will be the guests of the management, special seats being reserved for them and a supper tendered as a feature of their entertainment.

NEWS OF THE THEATRES

NEVER since the days of "The Clemenceau Case," whose "great" scene was the posing of a woman for an artist's depicting in the nude, have I seen such a craning of necks and general leveling of opera glasses as greeted the unveiling of Painter Trelawney's "Lady Godiva," at the Suburban last night.

The original of the picture, "The Modern Lady Godiva," in the person of Amelia Bingham playing the role of Lady Mary Fulton, sat broken and crushed in spirit of the foreground of the scene at the crucial moment. The leading members of the Suburban company, representing the membership of London's famous Victoria Club for the nonce, were grouped on the stage. All lights were out save those that enframed and illuminated the painting. Lady Mary's husband, Sir Charles Fulton, stood nearest the picture, confident that it would refute the "slander" which had it that his beloved wife was the original of the Lady Godiva then about to be shown, Mr. A. H. Van Buren as Sir Charles playing his strongest at this juncture. Harry Sheldon as Trelawney, the artist, stood near him, and the villain, who had planned the whole thing—the scoundrelly Harrigan, portrayed by Harry Fenwick, was gloating big gloats closer to the footlights.

The Unveiled "Lady Godiva."

And then the curtains concealing the Lady Godiva picture were drawn aside and the big audience—so big that it had been photographed by flashflight a little time before as a memento of the "premiere" of Fred F. Schrader's play—sat a bit tighter in their chairs and "took notice" long and earnestly.

It was a copy of Lefebre's celebrated painting, "Lady Godiva," that was then seen. There's nothing objectionable about it, unless all studies of the nude female figure are to be excluded from art galleries as objectionable. Naturally, however, Sir Charles Fulton was deeply shocked that his wife should have posed for such a figure—and he called her evil names and cast her off then and there.

The shaping of the story up to the fall of the curtain on this scene, marking the close of the third act, had been strongly and most effectively dramatic. Miss Bigham, Mr. Van Buren, Mr. Fenwick and others of the cast had played their parts well. A great storm of applause swept over the house, repeated again and again, until Amelia Bingham had to voice her thanks in half a dozen tremulous words. The play had made a hit all right—and it has the making of a big melodramatic success that shall not decrease in emphasis if the final act is somewhat amended during the corrective process that must needs follow all first productions. As played last night, this fourth and final act is pitched in a key so intensely theatric that it defeats its own purpose. The big closing "triangle" scene between Lady Mary, her husband and Harrigan, the villain, doesn't call for vociferousness in its handling—it will be all the stronger for being played quietly.

A Strongly Dramatic Story.

The play has a fine plot-basis—a wife's sacrifice of all womanly modesty to save her husband's life. I'm told that the incident of a wife's posing for a Lady Godiva painting with this motive has been used before as the foundation for an earlier play, but I'm also assured that there is no closer connection between the two. That such a story makes a powerful appeal to an audience was conclusively demonstrated last night. Tears stood in many women's eyes at the close of the second act, where Lady Mary Fulton, made desperate by her husband's poverty-stricken illness, at last consents to pose as Lady Godiva. I would suggest that a tremendous dramatic gain could be made if the curtain here went down on Miss Bingham as Lady Mary with her arms outspread as if on a crucifix against the door behind her which waited her almost dying husband, the wife crying, brokenly—"I do it for his sake—I do it for his sake!" That's a big moment—and all that follows weakens its effect on the house.

Also, it seems to me, the close of the third act, strongly dramatic though it now is, can be given additional strength by "cutting" Lady Mary's speech as much as possible. A great emotional climax has been worked up there—the sooner the curtain can go down on it, the better. And these changes can be made so easily!

Miss Bingham's Sympathetic Portrayal

Miss Bingham played Lady Mary with effective feeling. She has every woman in the house with her from start to finish. There's a touch of comedy in the first act that legitimately emphasizes the menace of tragedy at its close. The somberness of the second act is lightened by the excellent character work of Morris McHugh as a London coster, and Florence Fisher as a lodging-house "slavey." The intensity of the third act, the unveiling scene, is similarly relaxed by the lightsome chatter of the "smart" Victoria Club gathering. There needs to be no comedy in the fourth act—its happy ending suffices, especially if the scene is played with greater repression than at present. The story naturally so shapes itself from the beginning that Lady Mary holds the center of the stage in the house's thoughts, and Miss Bingham's conception of the part admirably impresses one with its qualities of purity and wifely devotion. I should not be surprised if it became an extremely popular "Amelia Bingham role" with the public.

The support given Miss Bingham was uncommonly good. Van Buren made a manly and likeable Sir Charles and Fenwick an impressively villainous Harrigan, redeemed at moments by his great love for Lady Mary. Walter Gilbert played an amusing young English nobleman and Perla Landers has an excellent ingenue role as the rich American girl whom he wins. I've already spoken of the good work done by Morris McHugh and Florence Fisher. The scenic production of the play is on a par with ambitious efforts in regular houses during the winter season.

"The Telephone Girl" at Delmar.

The bells are going ting-a-ling-a-ling again this week at Delmar Garden, where "The Telephone Girl" has been revived for the upmteenth time. But age does not wither this favorite bunch of nonsense and it is destined to be so popular this week that it will probably be given again later in the season. There is a lot of funny fun in "The Telephone Girl," despite its occasional New York Tenderloin atmosphere.

John E. Young has never done anything funnier than his Hans Nix. His troubles with the telephone, the cocktail mixed up with the lady's switch, his efforts to find "vires" when other thought he was looking for fires, his explosive "Don'd did id!"—all these are just as delightful as they ever were and they cause just as much hearty laughter.

Of the new members of the company, Miss Josie Intropidi won the honors as Samantha Fairfax. She and William Herman West were a pair of fine rural jays, and Miss Intropidi danced with a reckless abandon that delighted the audience. Harry Burgess only appeared once. A part has been written in for him which gave him a fine opportunity for a grotesque dance. In this he was ably assisted by Miss Mae Quinlan.

William Seymour as Snuffles and Lulu Wells as Toots were repeatedly encored with their topical song, which brought in many St. Louis hits. Alice B. Hills was excruciatingly homely as Mrs. Puffaway and she was funny—very funny.

Blanche Deyo has not fully found her voice yet, but she has little chance to use it in the title role. She is good to look at and is quite delightful in her love scenes with Frank Rushworth.

There is a little girl at the west end of the row of chairs at the switchboard in the first act—the program does not identify her—who has the real thing in the way of a laugh. She went into paroxysms of mirth that forced the audience to join her because some man was saying horrid things to her over the telephine. A girl who can laugh like that over an imaginary jest would probably have appoplexy if she had real cause for merriment.

The "stein song" has been interpolated in the last act. It is sung by Edwin A. Clark, who first sang it on the stage ten or a dozen years ago in Chicago. He was in excellent voice last night and the song has rarely been done better in St. Louis.

Altogether, "The Telephone Girl" was worth reviving, and it seems destined to take away much of the discomfort of the heated term that now promises to descend on St. Louis.

"Under Two Flags" at the Heights.

Ethel Fuller and the West End Heights Stock Company began a week's engagement in "Under Two Flags" at the Heights theater Sunday and made the hit of the season to date. Fuller, in the role of "Cigarette," the child of the army and soldier of France, was never better, seldom as impressive. The support by the company was excellent.

She is most effective in her emotional scene at the tent of the Princess Corona, during the desert sandstorm, as she appears on horseback, and in the last scene, where she rides into camp and saves the life of Bertie Cecil by throwing herself in front of him as his executioners fire, receiving the mortal wound herself, and happy at the sacrifice.

Few eyes were dry as "Cigarette" called her soldier comrades to her side and bade them, who worshiped her as they would a goddess, a last farewell.

The work of Frank La Rue in the leading male role of Bertie Cecil, is excellent. Miss Alice Donovan, as the Princess Corona, and Miss Muriel Starr, as Lady Guenevere, were close seconds to Miss Fuller in their respective roles. Ogden Crane, Harry Scott, Richard Ogden, F. B. Hersome and Miss Sarah Sumner were competent at all moments.

Police Benefit Begins at Highlands.

The annual Police Relief Association benefit began its two-weeks' course at Forest Park Highlands yesterday afternoon and evening with bright promise of a record-breaking success. Duss and his famous band, the concert attraction, made a big popular hit in a program of excellent quality, especially arranged to please music lovers and reveal the musicianly merits of the organization. Duss' leadership of the band is marked by a nonchalance and ease of manner which do much to commend him to the liking of his audiences, and, while sufficiently emphatic when occasion requires, is free from any attempt at theatrical posing or exaggerated vehemence.

The vaudeville bill in the pavilion is headed by Grace Van Studdiford, who sang several pleasing numbers and received a most cordial welcome from her home audience. Among other features of the bill are Joseph Hart's Dancing Daisies, Tom Nawn and Charlotte Lapelle in a clever sketch entitled "A Touch of Nature;" Belle Hathaway in a most interesting trained animal act, introducing her wonderful baboons and monkeys; Foster and Foster, musical comedians; Wilson Brothers, German dialect comedians and singers, and the polyscope, with new pictures appropriate to the special occasion. The pavilion was handsomely decorated with flags and bunting.

Good Vaudeville Bill at Mannion's.

At Mannion's Park the new vaudeville bill put on for the week beginning yesterday proved of pleasing quality. Reba and Inez Kauffman, musical comedy favorites, gave a [illegible] singing and dancing act, [illegible] of costumes. Count De Buts [illegible] their celebrated [illegible] regular vaudeville stage, and scored a notable success. Other features were Mr. and Mrs. John T. Powers in a sparkling comedy sketch entitled "The Players;" Lew Wells, in a monologue and novelty musical act, and Eddie Geer in a vaudeville novelty act.

Minstrelsy at Empire Garden.

The Empire Minstrels, a popular St. Louis organization under the management of M. J. Gallagher, began a four-weeks' engagement at Empire Garden last night. An interesting program was offered, comprising a regular minstrel first part and followed by a clever olio bill.

Creatore at Lemp's Park.

Creatore and his band delighted two big audiences at Lemp's Park yesterday afternoon and evening. The programs included numbers from Verdi, Donizetti, Gounod, Strauss, Brahms, Paderewski, Rossini and other famous composers, and was of such variety in its appeal as to please all classes. The attendance at the Creatore concerts is increasing steadily.

"The Counterfeiters" at Eclipse Garden.

The week's engagement of "For the Love of Woman" came to its close at Eclipse Garden last night, the Stanley Stock Company having scored an excellent success in this offering. This evening the thrilling melodrama, "The Counterfeiters," will be put on for the week. New specialties will be introduced between the acts.

PITCHER'S THROW FRACTURES ARM

Isaac Walters of Belleville is confined to his home with a broken right arm, caused by pitching a ball. Walters was pitching for the "Skidoo" team at Belleville in their game against the Rosa Lees.

As he drew back his arm to pitch the ball, in the sixth inning, he felt something catch in the upper part of his arm. He threw the ball, or at least he attempted to. Instead of it going over home plate, as was intended, the ball shot off at an angle and rolled between home and third base.

Walters' arm fell useless to his side and he was almost overcome with pain. He was taken to Dr. B. E. Twitchell's office on South High street, where an X-ray machine revealed a fractured bone between the elbow and shoulder. The physician is of the opinion that the force of the throw and the twist given to his arm to impart a curve caused the break.

The family of J. N. Parrotte here numbers 16 sons and two daughters.

The family of Alexander Cunningham has 14 members, the sexes being evenly divided.

Pitts Powers has 12 children.

There is not a family in the whole country surrounding Charlotte that has less than eight members.

Recently an Indiana man, John Nabb, removed from Mount Vernon, Ind., to this place. He had only one child, a little girl.

The Nobbs were made to feel their unpopularity to such an extent that they only remained in Charlotte for three weeks, moving from here to Milan, Tenn., where race suicide feeling is not so extreme.

CARPENTER CUTS WIFE'S THROAT AND KILLS SELF

Razor Ends Lives of Couple Who Had Found Marriage a Failure.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

DETROIT, Mich. June 17.—William Roulo, a carpenter, cut his wife's throat last night and slashed his own with the same razor. Both died where they fell, in a bedroom, where their two children were sleeping.

The pair had quarreled bitterly during the past six months and Mrs. Roulo had applied for a divorce. When the two children, aged 7 and 5 years, wakened this morning they found the bodies on the floor and called the neighbors.

BOSTON, June 17.—The Browns and the Bostons met in a morning game here today, and when it was over the St. Louisans were only able to drag themselves to their carriages, so tired were they from running around the bases.

Not a Brownie crossed the plate until the fifth inning, but then a bunch of hits and a lot of errors put six men home, and from then on the Browns were busy.

Butler was at third for St. Louis and played a star game with the bat. The final score was: St. Louis 11, Boston 4. Boston used three pitchers and St. Louis two.

FIRST INNING.

BROWNS—Stone was hit by a pitched ball. Jones fanned. Stone was out stealing, Armbruster to Ferris. Pickering was safe on Wagner's low throw. Wallace flied to Parent. NO RUNS.

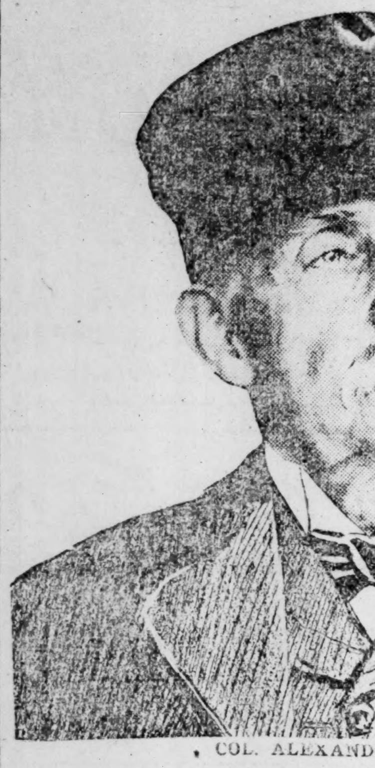
NEWSBOYS' FRIEND AND FATHER OF CURFEW LAW, ENDED HIS LIFE



COL. ALEXANDER HOGELAND.

Hogeland, Father of the Curfew Law, Kills Himself in Omaha.

TURNED ON THE GAS

He Was 76 Years Old and Had Been Ill for Years.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OMAHA, Neb., June 17.—Col. Alexander Hogeland, father of the curfew law, president of the Boys' and Girls' National Curfew Association, and the famous friend of newsboys, was found dead in bed in the Murray Hotel this morning, a suicide.

Before retiring at 6 o'clock Sunday night, Hogeland fastened down the windows and transom, and, after undressing, turned on the gas jet. When found the body was stiff, indicating that he had been dead some time.

Ill health, together with the feebleness of his 76 years, are believed to have prompted him to take his life.

He had been in Omaha since June 5, but was so feeble he could hardly get about. He was on the street Sunday and nearly suffered heat prostration. This compelled him to seek his room early. He complained to the clerk that he was feeling badly and left instructions that he was not to be disturbed. He remarked to the elevator boy that his extreme age had made him unfit to complete the work he had undertaken, but did not intimate that he contemplated suicide.

The Newsboys' Friend.

When Mrs. Brown, proprietress of the hotel, discovered that he had not been to breakfast, she went to investigate. She discovered the fumes of gas eminating from the room. The door was broken open and Hogeland was found lying on the bed in a perfectly natural position.

He had been engaged in the work of uplifting newsboys for 25 years and presided over the first international curfew congress in St. Louis, in July, 1904. His name was known throughout the civilized world for his good work, and his death will be mourned by millions.

The body was taken in charge by Coroner Brailey, who is preparing it for shipment to Louisville, Ky.

Mrs. Andrew McMurtry, his sister, living in Lincoln, a few days ago wrote friends in Omaha to look carefully after Hogeland, indicating that she feared something might happen.

The Coroner and attaches of the hotel are certain it was a case of suicide which had been carefully planned. His effects had been packed in a trunk, but no letters were left. A week ago he addressed a meeting of the Y. M. C. A. on the curfew law. For years he made Lincoln his temporary home.

LYNCHING OF ASSAILANT OF COLOR CODE VIOLATOR NOT JUSTIFIED BY PRESS

Vicksburg Herald Says Members of Mob Should Be Convicted of Murder.

VICKSBURG, Miss., June 17. — The Daily Herald is leading the press of the State in denouncing the lynching of Lee Fox, a negro, who killed Lee Reynolds, white, with whom he had been shooting craps.

Fox was lynched by 50 men near Blaine, 10 hours after he had killed Reynolds. Both men had been attending a dance, and had been shooting craps in a crowd of whites and negroes all night, and had been drinking. Reynolds had won all Fox's money.

Angered at his loss, Fox shot Reynolds as he walked from the room at 2 a. m.

Commenting on the lynching, the Herald says.

"We never before read of so unjustifiable and revolting a case of lynching. Certainly the white men who would lynch a negro for killing a white man who had so grossly violated the color line code, were not Southern born. And if tried before a jury of Southern men, these lynchers would surely be convicted of murder."

DONORS TO LEPER CHURCH FUND ATTEND DEDICATION

New Orleans Provides Chapel for "Unclean" Community and Sees It Opened.

NEW ORLEANS, June 17.—The afflicted inmates of the Leper Home, near New Orleans, now worship in a beautiful little chapel, the gift of charitable residents of this city. It takes the place of a dilapidated old shanty, which did service for many years.

The new chapel is known as the Chapel of the Sacred Heart. The first holy sacrifice in the chapel was offered by the Rev. Albert Blever, S. J., under whose leadership the work was begun.

Many of the donors to the fund and a large party of New Orleans clergymen attended the dedicatory exercises in the home of the "Unclean."

Counting Flood Damage.

BATESVILLE, Ark., June 17.—A force of 50 men is employed at lock No. 2 on White River, above Batesville, repairing the damage done there by the high water early in May. About 6000 yards of earth and stone between the lock wall and the bank on the south side of the river had washed out, making a great hole there. The damage is estimated at $15,000.

Killed With Own Gun.

PERKINS, O. T., June 15.—I. R. Dungan, a Payne County farmer, was accidentally killed while cutting alfalfa. He was carrying a shotgun for rabbits, when the weapon fell against a wheel and was discharged, the entire load entering Dungan's side. He drove his team to the barn and fell dead.

The True Meaning of Cleanliness.

Absolute cleanliness cannot be obtained by simply using soap and water. To clean right you must purify—soap and water do not do this. Get a Disinfectant that mixes with water and is non-poisonous, put a little of it into your bucket, scrub and wash with it, use it from cellar to garret, then you will have a pure-clean home, not a too-clean one. CN is such a Disinfectant.

YOUNG BIRDS FEED ON INSECTS

Over 100 Meals a Day Not Unusual for Some Nests.

The insatiable appetite of young birds, and, indirectly, the benefits which a community receives from the presence of insect-eating birds, is admirably brought out in a study made by the students of the University of Indiana, at the biological station at Winona Lake.

Relays of students, according to the Nature Study Review, placed themselves in a position to observe continuously from daylight to dark, the movements in the nests of an orchard oriole, a pewee, a phebe and a wren, all of which belong to the insect-consuming class of birds.

The little wren's nest, in which there were five birds about 3 days old, was a scene of great activity and in the nine hours and 26 minutes the little bird family was under observation the nestlings were fed 113 times, most of the food being foraged for by the male bird, but distributed by the mother bird.

The food consisted of cutworms, grasshoppers, cabbage worms and sundry smaller insects which were not identified.

The nest of the phebe, which contained two young birds 4 days old, gave evidence of the first activity at 4:20 a. m., when it began to rain, the young birds had received 260 installments of dinner. The voracity of the orioles and pewees were equally remarkable.—Philadelphia Record.

TEXAS MEMORIAL CHURCH TO COST OVER $200,000

Contract Is Closed for Magnificent Presbyterian Edifice at Orange.

ORANGE, Tex., June 15.—The contract closed for the erection of the magnificent Lutcher Memorial Presbyterian Church at Orange, a church building to be erected by Mrs. Henry J. Lutcher as a memorial for Mr. and Mrs. Lutcher, and which when complete is to cost more than $200,000.

The church is to be built of Texas granite and is ornate and beautiful in design. The contractor will immediately proceed to arrange for the assembling of the necessary material, awarding subcontracts, etc., and expects to be actively at work on the building within 30 days.

MILLIONAIRE KICKS OVER REDUCTION IN HIS SALARY

Is Arkansas Postmaster and Now Gets $1,100 Annually From Government.

MARKED TREE, Ark., June 15.—Because his salary as Postmaster was reduced from $1200 per annum to $1100 for the same time, Postmaster E. Ritter, the only multi-millionaire in this part of the State, has registered loud and lusty kicks, which may reach the ears of the department at Washington. The stamp sales fell off here during the first three months in the year, which is thought to have cut the salary of the rich man. The sales prior to that were unusually large, and Mr. Ritter accounts for the falling off by the flooded condition of the country then.

CHILDREN FACE DEATH TO ESCAPE A WHIPPING

Brother and Mother Rescue Four From House They Had Set Afire.

GUTHRIE, O. T., June 15.—After accidentally setting fire to an upstairs room of their farmhouse, four children of Abraham Slaughter, living near Manchester, locked themselves in an adjoining room to escape punishment. An older brother fought his way through the flames, broke open the door and rescued the children by dropping them through an open window to a mattress beneath. Both he and Mrs. Charles Slaughter were critically burned in fighting the fire.

NEBRASKA BOY OF 11 CONFESSES HE KILLED MOTHER FOR REVENGE

First Contended Fatal Shot Was Accident, but He Weakens in Jail.

BASSETT, Neb., June 15.—Calif McCoy, the 11-year-old son of Mrs. Thomas McCoy, is held in jail here on the charge of deliberately murdering his mother. The boy has admitted he carefully planned the murder, seeking revenge because his mother had severely whipped him.

When Mrs. McCoy was killed the boy admitted the killing, but declared it was accidental. He said he was shooting at a bird, and had no intention of shooting his mother.

He later confessed to the officers that he first shot her through the head, and to make sure she was dead fired another bullet into her body after she had fallen to the ground.

He said that on the first shot he slipped up behind his mother, held the revolver with both hands to make his aim certain, and fired.

TORPEDO BOAT TRIES TO SINK A RUSSIAN CUTTER

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

SEBASTOPOL, June 17.—Rear Admiral Wirein, in command of the Black Sea fleet, was cruising in a steam cutter yesterday while a torpedo boat, in command of Lieut. Ruzhek was practicing firing Whiteheads in the inner bay.

When the admiral's cutter was at short range the torpedo boat suddenly changed her position and fired a blank Whitehead directly at the cutter, penetrating the latter's water tank. Prompt action in beaching the cutter saved the Admiral.

Lieut Ruzhek explained that the Whitehead was fired accidentally, but he and three junior lieutenants, who were sullen and refused to salute the Admiral, were degraded and, as the result of later evidence, arrested on the charge of attempting to sink the cutter.

Tusa Census Shows 16,000.

TULSA, I. T., June 15.—It is officially estimated that Tulsa now has a population of over 16,000. The census taken by the old town shows a population of 7818, and it is estimated that more people are living outside of the original townsite than there are in it. These figures surprise even Tulsa. The last census taken gave the city a population of 13,876.

SUITS FOR BACK SWITCHING FEES

East Side Hay and Grain Company Says $2 Charge Per Car Is Unlawful.

Five suits against East Side railroads were filed in the East St. Louis City Court Monday by the St. Louis Hay and Grain Co., which charges extortion in the $2 switching charges imposed when cars are switched onto Terminal tracks.

The suits are against the Chicago & Alton, $404; Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis, $190; Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, $1030; Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern, $280; Toledo, St. Louis & Western, $1040. Enough punitive damages are sought, in addition to these actual damages, to make the total in each case $1999.

The grain company charges that the $2 switching charge is in excess of the rate agreed upon by the railroads and the Railroads and Warehouse Commission. Schedules of every car shipped by the company from January, 1903, to June, 1906, were submitted with the petition.

I. T. COOK.

Henry Chadwick Says It Is Not Perfect, and Suggests the Much-Needed Change.

Oldest Baseball Enthusiast Makes a Reply to Managers McGraw and Griffith.

HOW TO PERFECT GAME

By Henry Chadwick

Cut out the kicking and limit the foul-strike rule.

It is an injustice to call strikes on a batsman because he bunts foul.

Limit the foul strike to balls hit back of the home plate.

Encourage scientific play.

Clean hitting, with the foul-strike rule eliminated, will remedy all evils.

Don't try to abolish the curve ball or spitball; they are beauties of the game.

HENRY CHADWICK, the 83-year-young father of baseball, has gone to bat against McGraw and Griffin. Incidentally he gives all baseball fans something to think about.

For 62 years the advance of America's national pastime has filled the pages of the venerable Henry Chadwick's career. He is known wherever baseball is played as its father and its sponsor. To him its patrons appeal in time of distress. And now, in his eighty-third year, as hale and as hearty as when he was 50, he stands guardian over the destinies of the sport, calling a halt on what he considers the evils of the modern game.

He has nothing but respect and applause for the progressive policies of Managers McGraw and Griffith, but in the same breath he deplores the excitable tactics often seen on the New York fields. Besides, he does not altogether agree with the local chieftains when they say the game today is O. K. To show that he is not a theorist, he proudly cites the fact that he scored the game between the representative public school teams of Manhattan and Brooklyn only last Saturday.

"It was the most remarkable contest in point of the absence of batting errors that I ever witnessed," he said. "Not a passed ball, a hit batsman, a base on balls or a wild throw being made by the pitchers and catchers of either side—a surprising record for young players.

"Kicking at the umpires and exciting the crowds has driven more true followers of baseball than myself from a park," declared the father of baseball today.

"I saw six innings of the Giants-Cubs recent contest at the Polo Grounds, but I had to leave when the crowd began to clamor, and I can't say if I want to see any more of the professional game as it is played today. I like to watch college teams play, where there is no kicking, and I never miss a chance to watch such a contest.

"McGraw is a great leader. He told me enough to assure me that he understands scientific baseball. But when he says 'baseball's main object is to please the public,' he is mistaken. That is the professional idea. It cannot be the main object from the fact that the public as a rule does not understand the real beauties of the game as exhibited in scientific pitching. To this add fine support in the field against such skillful work at the bat as one sees when such masters as Willie Keeler, who excels all batsmen in the art of driving a runner around, faces the pitcher. There you have the ideal game. That's what we expect.

"The patrons do not want a lot of heavy hitting. They look for a scarcity of hits. What does it want? Runs. Runs, and more runs when the score is close. How are they made? Only by versatility at bat. Bunting, safe taps, red-hot drives, anything to shove the runner about, that is baseball, and that is what the public wants.

"Don't try to abolish the spit ball or the curve ball—they are beauties of the game. Cut out the kicking and limit the foul-strike rule. Baseball today, is not perfect. It is not the enjoyable game it was one time, despite the fact that we frequently made as many as 200 runs when the game was young. It's a farce, and an injustice to call strikes on a batsman because he is unfortunate enough to bunt foul.

"Limit the foul strike to balls hit back of the home plate and for ever do away with the growling and grumbling of the modern game and baseball will be the most perfect pastime in the history of sports. Encourage scientific play. Make Keelers out of batsmen and you have champions. That's why the White Sox are champions. A .300 average don't make a great batsman. Clean hitting, with the foul strike rule amended, will remedy all evils. Take it from the oldest reporter and baseball's oldest active follower."

This is the solution to the baseball problem which has interested managers of both leagues, according to "Father" Chadwick. His observations came after a lifetime of study. Since he caught 'em on the bounce in the days of the old Atlantics, he has never lost sight of the developments of baseball. Besides, he is authority on cricket. Only two years ago that old man, who has never used tobacco in any form, was a member of Staten Island cricket team when it achieved a notable victory over the New New Jersey Veteran Cricketers. Chadwick came to bat with his team behind, but so keen is the aged fan's eye he made eight runs during his inning and won his game. This astonishing performance is without a parallel in sports. He was then 81 years old

CARDINALS NOW PLAY BROOKLYN

BIG LOSS TO MAGNATES

Bad Weather Early This Season Has Done Great Damage to Box Offices.

DOVEY'S Boston Nationals played the Cardinals a good and fast series by winning three of the four contests, yesterday's victory taking the third with a score of 2 to 0.

The line-up of Beaumont and Ritchey has strengthened the Beaneaters enough to make them an important factor in the first division next season and should they continue their present gait they surely will land fourth or fifth.

Eddie Karger pitched as good a game Sunday as he did on Thursday, when he downed the visitors by a score of 1 to 0, but three of the four hits he allowed were bunched in the seventh inning, netting two runs, which were plenty to win with a margin.

The Cardinals made five hits and had several good opportunities to score. The pinch hit was always missing.

This afternoon the Cardinals line up with Donovan's Trolley Dodgers, who came down from Chicago Sunday night fresh and happy because of their victory over Chance's Cubs yesterday.

WHAT with Harry Pulliam and George Dovey in town for several days, there has been no end of baseball talk about the future of the game and everything else in general. The attendance out at League Park has not been very good, but then Pulliam was here to see things at the very worst time for the Boston Nationals, despite Mr. Dovey's personal popularity, are not good drawing cards in St. Louis.

Baseball magnates everywhere need big crowds right now to offset the days lost this spring. Estimated on a conservative basis, the extraordinary weather conditions which have prevailed this year have cost the club owners of the two major leagues alone the sum of : .000, to say nothing of the host of minor leagues and independent clubs which have suffered proportionately to their size. Up to yesterday there had been postponed in the National League 51 games and in the American League 49 games, making a total of an even 100 games lost on account of bad weather. A number of these games have been played off on open dates or as double-headers, but allowances are made for these in this estimate, and double-headers never attract twice as many people as a single game would under similar conditions. There is a wide difference between the losses of winning clubs and losing clubs in a pennant race; but, taken as a general proposition, the records show that 5000 is a low figure for the average attendance per game for a major league club.

On this basis a conservative estimate of the value of each postponed game would be $2000 in money, which in itself would mean $200,000 as the Major League's losses by postponed games alone this year. As stated, some of this has been made up by playing off games, but not enough to exceed allowance made for mistakes in the estimate. Approximately the same number of games have been played by both leagues this year, and that number is close to two hundred in each circuit, or 400 games for both. It is not too strong to say the poor weather conditions under which the great majority of these games have been played have kept the average receipts below normal by at least $500 per game. The games which have been played under weather conditions which did not affect attendance have been so few they could almost be counted on one's fingers. It must be remembered $500 represents only a little over one thousand people at Major League prices. On a basis of $500 decrease in patronage for each game played, over $200,000 could be added to the $200,000 lost by postponements. That would make a total of $400,000 lost; but, deducting 25 per cent to allow for what few favorable conditions have prevailed, and for double-headers, it will be seen the original estimate of $300,000 is a low one.

THE new clubhouse for League Park has been finished and the building was given a thorough inspection by the players and Manager McCloskey this morning. Everything was found to be in perfect working order.

The baths were tested in both visitors' and home team rooms, the ventilation system was admired and the players are eager for the first day it will be put into use.

All of the players thought it best to wait until the team comes home from its next trip, leaving here Thursday night and returning July 25 with Brooklyn as opponents, before the club should be used, and the request will be carried out.

BEN MILLERS IN CLOSE STRUGGLE

Beat Zeigenhein Brothers of East St. Louis by a Score of 7 to 5.

Yesterday's game at Kulage's Park, between the local champions, the Ben Millers and the Zeigenhein Bros., won by the former team, 7 to 5, was witnessed by the largest crowd that has ever attended a Trolley League game in this city. The day was a perfect one for baseball, and the game was a brilliant one and pleased the large crowd present. Rehmer of the Millers was at his best and his team mates played a fast game behind him, while Herr, who was put in to do the twirling in place of St. Vrain, who was prevented from ptiching owing to a death in his family, was in fine form, and with an even break of luck might have won out.

THE MO. VALLEY CONFERENCE END

Action of Washington University Advisory Athletic Board Sounds Its Death Knell.

The action of the Washington University Advisory Board in allowing the myrtle and maroon school to meet in athletic contests with schools not living up to the conference rules sounds the death knell of the existence of the Missouri Valley conference.

This organization, which was patterned after the Western conference and which nominally embraced Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Washington universities, but which actually had never a living organization and was only kept alive by the zealous efforts of Washington, was entirely unsuited to the needs that it was supposed to meet and its demise should clear the way for the foundation of a conference that will be designed for the conditions of the universities of the Southwest.

Kansas, Missouri, Washington and St. Louis universities should constitute the nucleus of some combination formed to promote a clean, wholesome, interest in college athletics and shaped to govern them in a reasonable, appropriate manner. There is no apparent cause why such a step should not now be taken, and with either of the above four schools taking the initiative and calling the meeting together, it is nearly certain that such an object could be attained.

FROMME DOWN WITH BAD FOOT

Cardinals' Twirler Out of the Game With Blood Poisoning From Slight Wound.

Pitcher Fromme of the Cardinals is laid up with what may prove to be a serious case of blood poisoning.

In one of the games with Boston last week he bruised his left foot slightly and no attention was paid to the wound.

Sunday it was discovered that the dye from his cardinal stockings had rubbed off into the scratch and his foot began to swell. A doctor was called at once and Fromme is now under his care.

It is impossible to tell at this time how long he may be out of the game. Should the wound develop seriously, the team will be greatly handicapped, as the twirler is one of McCloskey's standbys.

BIG ROWING REGATTA ONLY TEN DAYS AWAY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 17.—The next 10 days, all the time that intervenes between now and the intercollegiate rowing regatta, will be taken up with stenuous practice on the part of the oarsmen of the seven universities assembled here. All the coaches agree that there is no time to spare and none will concede that his crew is in a condition of preparedness.

This is especially true of the Cornell varsity, which worked last week as if the practice were in its earliest stages. Usually the Cornell crew is in racing form when it leaves Ithaca, but the showing made by the men the last few days is in line with the dubious way Coach Courtney shakes his head when asked about the crew.

There has been talk of a slump in the Cornell eight since yesterday, when the freshmen defeated the varsity a good three lengths in a race of two miles. The reason for it is unaccountable, even to the coach. There is not a poor oarsman in the crew and the form was excellent throughout the race, yet there seemed to be a lack of power in the boat. Under these circumstances the practice of Cornell will be watched with the keenest interest the coming week.

Somehow the sentiment appears to be crystallizing here that Cornell, always the favorite by reason of past performances, will get its sharpest competition from Syracuse and Wisconsin, both of which are making excellent impressions in the daily practice. Wisconsin's defeat of Syracuse on the lake at Madison this spring has given the Badgers a prestige here.

SPORTING NOTES

You can always trust a "reformer" to overplay himself.

President Johnson would be a long time in Cincinnati—but let us count 20 before saying something mean.

We don't see how our distinguished ex-fellow townsman, John A. Drake, can forsake his racing cares long enough to be trimmed in Wall street.

Is it not about time for that pleasant party, Sir Thomas Lipton, to reassert?

E. G.: We cannot inform you who is manager of the Boston Americans, as the paper doesn't go to press for a couple of hours.

NEWS OF THE DAY

brides will have worn the same il when Miss Beatrice Lodge ad- e filmy fabric to her hair Monday

odge is the eighth, and probably ny sisters and several friends en married under this veil," said orge Mepham, sister of Miss it whose home Monday evening rriage of Mr. Philo Stevenson s Lodge will take place.

will have to be its last wed- earance, I am afraid, for it has o fragile in the 12 years of its e and with so many wearings, will not last much longer. We raid it would hardly hold to- or my sister Monday night, but she declared her firm intention of making it do, even with a few rents and holes, so these will be as skillfully manipulated as possible, in order not to show, and the tulle fastened to her hair with a little wreath of orange blossoms.

"I was the first bride to wear it," continued Mrs. Mepham. "Then followed my sisters, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Hemingway of New York, Mrs. Woodruff, an aunt, and Mrs. Hoffman, who had been a bridesmaid of mine. My sister-in-law, Mrs. Harry Lodge, who was Miss Gilbert, next wore the veil. Then came Mrs. McClelland, and now my sister, the bride of Monday."

The marriage of Miss Lodge and Mr. Stevenson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Stevenson of St. Louis, and principal of the Humboldt School, will take place at 8 o'clock, at the South Side Church of the Unity, where all members of the Lodge and Mepham families have been married. The ceremony will be followed by a small reception at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Mepham, 4434 Westminster place.

Ushers at the church who will also serve as groomsmen are Messrs. Alex Skinker, Paul Blackwelder, Douglas Lee and Arthur Berg. Warren Tyrrell is to assist Mr. Stevenson as best man. Rev. George Dodson will read the service.

The bride is to wear a robe of Viennese repousse lace built over white satin and made slightly empire with the old tulle veil and no jewels. She will carry a shower of lilies of the valley.

Her maid of honor is Miss May Thomson, who is to be in a lace empire gown, while the bridemaids, who are Miss Edna Stevenson of Seattle, and Miss Maud Delmar of New York, will wear white hand-embroidered lingerie gowns, slightly empire, and inserted with much Valenciennes lace. They all will carry showers of asparagus fern and white roses.

Mrs. Mepham will wear white embroidered batiste and lace entre deux. Four little flower girls will take part in the bridal procession, wearing white lace-trimmed frocks, and carrying baskets of white roses. They are Misses Rosalind and Beatrice Thomas, nieces of the bride, with Miss Ellen Hossman and Miss Eleanor Dodson.

Flowers, White and Green.

The floral decorations are to be entirely in white and green. The church chancel will be filled with palms, white carnations and sweet peas, and the Mepham residence will be decorated in many roses and ferns. The bridal party will receive in the library, which is to be in white roses alone.

Mr. Stevenson and his bride will take a very short trip at present, leaving town Monday night after the reception for a 10-days' stay. Then they will return to St. Louis, where the bridegroom will have charge of the vacation schools until the first of August. Then they will go East for six weeks, visiting the Massachusetts coast.

Miss Van Riper Entertains.

The Waterman avenue home of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Van Riper was a mass of pink flowers Monday afternoon when Miss Leah Van Riper entertained the seniors of Mary Institute and other young girl friends with a tea. Pink peonies and green foliage made a pretty background in the library where Miss Van Riper and Mrs. Van Riper received the guests.

Mrs. Van Riper wore a white lingerie gown and the dainty white graduating frock was worn by Miss Van Riper.

D. A. R. at Glen Echo.

A meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution was held at Glen Echo Club Friday afternoon in honor of Flag Day. The hostesses were Mmes. W. C. Stith, Herbert L. Parker and S. B. Hinde. The guests were conveyed to the club by special cars.

The meeting was called to order by the regent, Mrs. Williamson, at 3 o'clock, and after the business part was completed a trio was sung by Mrs. Philput, Mrs. Milton Marshall and Mrs. Edwina Tutt. There were a violin solo by Mrs. Clinton Burg, accompanied on the piano by Mr. Fallette; solo by Mrs. Arthur Brinnington and recitations by Mrs. Harry Wagoner.

An address by Mr. Booth on the Ozark scholarship, vacation play grounds and children of the Republic was followed by the presentation of a handsome flag by Miss Allicon of Mexico, Mo., for Mrs. Tomb, the donor, who was detained in Kansas City by illness.

Gorla—Meyer.

One of the pretty weddings of the week was that of Miss Elizabeth Meyer to Oliver Joseph Gorla at St. Liborius' Church.

The bride wore an elaborate hand-embroidered lace robe with inserts of fillet over white taffeta and chiffon. The only ornament worn by the bride was a pair of diamond earrings, a gift of the bridegroom.

Mr. W. A. Hawe served as best man.

Daughters of 1812.

The Missouri Society of the United States Daughters of 1812 held a meeting Thursday at the Normandy Club. Mrs. Walace Delafield and Mrs. John Barrows were the hostesses.

Miss Powell read selections about "The American Flag," and showed several pictures of the different styles.

Miss Elizabeth Hawk gave a musical recitation accompanied by Mrs. Hagerbush, after which they played a duet, when the ladies adjourned to the broad veranda to enjoy refreshments.

Has No Contagious Diseases.

Contagious diseases, owing to American sanitation, have no place in the city of Manila these days. The health department shows a clean sheet on this score.

S.S.S. FORTY YEARS OF CURES

Long experience and thorough testing have proven S. S. S. to be the King of blood purifiers and the greatest of all tonics. For nearly half a century S. S. S. has been used in the treatment of blood and skin diseases of every character, and so satisfactory have been the results that it is now the best known and most widely used blood medicine on the market. S. S. S. attracted attention as soon as it was placed on the market by curing promptly those diseases for which it was recommended, and we have so jealously guarded its first good reputation, by keeping it up to its standard in manufacture, that it now has the unequalled and pleasing record of "Forty Years Of Cures." For Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Sores and Ulcers, Malaria, Skin Diseases, Contagious Blood Poison, and all other diseases due to an impure or poisoned condition of the blood, there is nothing that equals S. S. S. It counteracts and removes the germs and poisons, cleanses the system of all unhealthy matter, cures the trouble permanently, and restores strong, robust health. Where the blood is weak or anaemic and unable to nourish the system as it should, S. S. S. supplies it with the needed properties, and being a bracing, invigorating tonic it builds up the entire system. It goes to the very bottom of all blood disorders, and in this way reaches deep-seated and inherited cases on which the ordinary sarsaparillas and tonics have little or no effect. Not only is S. S. S. certain in its results, but it is an absolutely safe medicine. It enjoys the distinction of being the only blood medicine on the market that is guaranteed purely vegetable. If you are in need of a blood remedy begin the use of S. S. S., the medicine that has proven its worth by its record of forty years of cures. Book on the blood and any medical advice you wish. No charge for either.

CLYMER'S TEMTORS

Strawberry Preserves
With the Fresh Fruit Flavor

That's Clymer's Strawberry Temtors in the vacuum sealed jar, made from freshly ripe strawberries preserved with the best granulated sugar, even purer than government requirements.

The fresh fruit flavor is retained because the fruit is not allowed to "work" or ferment. Preservatives, supposed to prevent "working," often used by other manufacturers, are never used in Temtors.

Fresh fruit preserved in pure sugar will keep indefinitely in which absolutely prevents fermentation by—first—removing every bit of air from the top of the jar, and then supplying outside pressure which holds the cover on tightly until you are ready to use the delicious contents. You will find Temtors as fresh the day you eat them, as the day they left our kitchen.

We know you will like Strawberry Temtors because they have the real fruit taste when they reach your table, perfectly preserved in the natural way. Now, won't you taste some on this plan?

Try Clymer's Strawberry Temtors at Our Risk

Your grocer will return the full price paid, if you say so. Clymer's Strawberry Temtors are at your grocer's ready for your table; and remember, if you don't like it after tasting, you can have your money back without a question.

You can try, on this same "taste test" plan, other Temtor Preserves: Cherry, Red Raspberry, Blackberry, Plum or Peach.

TELEGRAPHERS WORK 8 HOURS AND WALK OUT

FRISCO OBTAINS HELP

Prosecutor at Mexico, Mo., Expected to Proceed Against Violators.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO, Mo., June 17.—Every railway telegrapher in the State employed by the Chicago & Alton Railway stopped work at 8 a. m. today because of the failure of the various lines to observe the new eight-hour law, which became effective Saturday.

This action affects the whole Chicago & Alton division between Louisiana and Kansas City, Mo. The day men went out at 3 p. m. Sunday. The night men who went on at 7 p. m. stopped at 8 a. m. today.

Before quitting they received a general order to take in all train signals, leaving the signal "proceed" in force at all stations.

Day Men Help Out.

The day men conceded sticking to their posts for 12 hours today until other men could be obtained to take their places. In the case of the Frisco Railway, extra men had been engaged so that the operators of the road were ready to meet the emergency.

It is said that the Prosecuting Attorney here will endeavor to enforce the provisions of the eight-hour law in this county. If the law is obeyed the operators will work from 7 a. m. to 3 p. m., from 3 p. m. to 11 p. m. and from 11 p. m. to 7 a. m.

In counties where the prosecuting attorneys are not paying any attention to the enforcement of the law, the operators have signified their intention of disregarding the elected officers of the county by employing lawyers to represent them in a fight to be made for the enforcement of the new act.

State Officers' Duty.

Secretary Leon W. Quick of the Order of Railway Telegraphers said: "No strike has been ordered, and if the men went out at Mexico I would guess the reason to be, in the absence of a report from them, that the railroads employing them made them work more than eight hours.

"June 14 a new State law became effective providing that railroads should not compel telegraphers to work more than eight hours a day, and providing a penalty for so doing.

"So far as I know, the railroads have not complied with this law since it became effective, and it is not our place to secure its enforcement. We depend on the State officials to do that."

ROOSEVELT WON'T INTERFERE IN TELEGRAPH SITUATION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., June 17.—President Roosevelt will not interfere at this stage in the controversy of the telegraph operators with the employing companies. Dispatches from the Chicago Board of Trade and other organizations largely dependent upon wire service were received at Washington on Saturday, appealing to the President to take action to prevent the calamity of a general telegraph strike. These were wired in full to Secretary Loeb at Oyster Bay and he called the President's attention to their general purport.

Following the President's decision, Mr. Loeb instructed the staff at Washington to refer the original dispatches to Commissioner of Labor Neill of the Department of Commerce and Labor. This action is not regarded as absolutely final, but as meaning that if the President were to be expected to intervene in all threatened or problematical strikes he would have his hands full. This leaves the matter open for a further appeal in case actual hostilities should occur.

STARS AND BARS COVER A PORTRAIT OF ROOSEVELT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 17.—While her colleagues stood by in amazement, Mrs. E. T. Sells, president of the Daughters of the Confederacy, draped the portrait of President Roosevelt in the stars and bars of the Confederacy.

It was the annual entertainment by the society at the Sherman House.

Silence followed and the president of the society thus explained:

"I do this with no feeling of disrespect. You may not know that the President is of Southern extraction. On his mother's side President Roosevelt's ancestors fought with the troops of the Confederacy and they fought desperately. The annals of war will show the justice of my position."

Clarence Schnieder Denies Trying to Sell Girl; Defends New Charge.

Clarence Schneider, a collector, was brought from Springfield, Ill., to St. Louis Monday and is held on a charge of being short in his accounts with the United States Music Co., 1603 Olive street, by whom he was employed until recently.

Schneider denies that he offered to sell Ruth Smith, 17 years old, who went to Springfield with him, for $5. He laughs at the charge made by the girl and R. W. Crouch of Springfield, who corroborated her story. Schneider admitted to Assistant Chief of Detectives McCarthy, however, that he was $15 short in his accounts with the music company.

He formerly was a blacksmith at Louisville, Ky. Since coming to St. Louis he has lived at the Olive Hotel, Nineteenth and Olive streets.

"I met Ruth Smith when I ate at the Star Lunchroom, 1803 Olive street, where she was a waitress," said Schneider. "I fell in love with her. I am 27 years old and she is 20. I proposed to her and she agreed to marry me. We went to Springfield intending to marry. I met a painter named Walter Crouch—the man who says I wanted to sell the girl to him—and introduced him to her. Friday evening she and her trunk were gone from the boarding house where we had been staying. The landlady said she had gone away with Crouch.

"It is absurd to say that I tried to sell her to Crouch. Such an idea never entered my head. As a matter of fact, Crouch owes me 50 cents that he borrowed a half hour after I first met him."

"The truth is, Crouch was jealous and wanted to get me out of the way. That's why this charge was made. I shall not marry the girl now. Our engagement is off."

SEVEN CHINESE BAPTIZED BY ROCKEFELLER'E PASTOR

Celestials, With Their White Wives and Children, Throng New York Church.

NEW YORK, June 17.—Seven Chinamen, converts to Christianity, were baptized at the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church by its pastor, the Rev. Dr. Aked.

In the congregation, too, were more than fifty Chinamen, some with their white wives and children. Said Dr. Aked, feelingly:

"I have been strangely touched by the fact that we are to baptize Chinamen in this church of God. It may not seem so to you (the congregation), but I never touched a Chinaman until I came to this country. I never even conversed with one.

"Now I am to take seven by the hand and point out the way for them to Jesus Christ. I am to take each in my arms and go through the ceremony of baptism with them. To me it is a wonderful experience."

FINE DRIVING HORSE IS SCARED TO DEATH BY BIG AUTOMOBILE

Heart Disease Supposed to Have Been Caused by Animal's Fright.

Dr. Grant Arnold of St. Charles is lamenting the loss of a fine driving horse, which dropped dead from fright as he was trying to accustom it to an automobile. The spirited black roadster, which Dr. Arnold prized highly, died of heart failure, he thinks, in the extremity of its terror.

The horse had several times been controlled only with extreme difficulty when automobiles appeared in the distance, and once had nearly upset the physician's storm buggy by turning suddenly. He was determined to train the animal not to fear machines.

Sunday evening at dusk Dr. Arnold was driving the horse in King's highway in St. Charles when he saw Dr. William Westphal's touring car standing in West Clay street. He turned into the street and started to drive past the machine, which was unoccupied.

The horse shied violently and attempted to back. Dr. Arnold, encouraging it with his voice, urged it toward the machine. As the horse drew closer it reared in terror, plunged forward and dropped between the shafts.

When Dr. Westphal reached the scene a few minutes later he found Dr. Arnold trying to discover some sign of life in the animal. It had died instantly.

ONE PLUNGE IN A POND MADE LIFE VERY SWEET

Man Quickly Cured of Desire to Die When Water Covered His Head.

After sinking once, John Strubb, 46 years old, who had tried to drown himself, changed his mind and begged to be rescued from a pond at California avenue and Meramec street. He was taken out of the water by Policeman Steinburg and Clerk John Burke of the Wyoming Street Station at 3 a. m. Monday.

Steinburg and Burke were attracted to the pond by cries for help. They saw Strubb struggling in the water. Burke peeled off his coat, waded in and pulled Strubb out.

He said he had been ill for several weeks and had concluded to end his life. He regretted the act, he said, after he had gone down the first time.

Strubb has been boarding at the home of Henry Mueller, 2132 Victor street. Little is known of his antecedents. He was taken to the City Hospital.

MAN AND TEAM KILLED BY TRAIN

Driver Sees the Locomotive When It Is Too Late and Tries to Jump.

A wagon driven by Richard James, 35 year old, of 905 Bartle avenue, was struck by an eastbound Missouri Pacific passenger train at King's highway at 7 a. m. Monday. James received injuries which resulted in his death a few minutes after he reached the City Hospital.

The two horses which he was driving were instantly killed and the wagon was demolished.

James had started to cross the track before he saw the train approaching. He made a desperate effort to get out of the way. He whipped up the horses and when he saw he could not avoid a collision he tried to jump.

The train struck the wogan before he left the seat, however. He was picked up unconscious and hurried to the hospital, where it was found he had sustained a fracture of the skull and internal injuries. He died while the attendants were preparing him for the operating table.

DR. KANE QUITS SINN FEIN

In Argument Over Parliament He Leaves Meeting.

The constitution of the newly organized St. Louis Sinn Fein Society, the purpose of which is the freedom of Ireland, will be presented for adoption at a meeting next Sunday night at Hibernian Hall.

P. R. Fitzgibbons introduced a resolution criticizing the Irish Parliamentary party in England at the meeting Sunday night. After a heated address opposing the resolution and assailing James Bryce, British Ambassador to the United States, who was recently in St. Louis, Dr. John J. Kane left the hall, declaring that he was "in the wrong crowd."

The resolution was adopted by a vote of 15 to 8. Those who spoke at the meeting were former Judge Daniel Dillon, James A. Reardon, James Flynn, Thomas Brady and J. Sheehan. Chairman John J. O'Connor presided.

REV. FATHER SCHROEDER TO BE BURIED ON WEDNESDAY

He Was Rector of Holy Trinity and Had Taken the Church Out of Debt.

The funeral of the Rev. Father Joseph Schroeder, rector of the Holy Trinity German Catholic Church, will be held Wednesday morning from the church. Interment will be made in Calvary Cemetery.

After an illness of a year the rector succumbed to cancer of the stomach and a complication of diseases. Born in St. Louis, Nov. 19, 1840, Father Schroeder practically spent all of his life in the Holy Trinity Parish. He was ordained a priest by Coadjutor Bishop Ryan in 1875.

Ten years ago Father Schroeder took charge of his parish, when the debt of the church was nearly $35,000. Today it is practically clear. The handsome new church at Fourteenth and Mallinckrodt streets, which was erected at a cost of $200,000, was built from funds made by personal canvassing under the directions of the father. He is survived by a sister and brother, who were at his deathbed.

HIS WIFE SAYS HE IS A MOLLYCODDLE

Mrs. George Bronson Howard Is Getting Ready to Bring Suit for Divorce.

DECLARES HE WON'T FIGHT

He Used Her Face Powder and Three Kinds of Hair Tonic, She Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 17.—The young wife of George Bronson Howard, the magazine writer, has returned from Europe and announces that she will institute suit for divorce. She asserts that he used all her face powder and allowed himself to be called a cad, a coward and a liar, without offering to fight.

Mrs. Howard, who was Miss Rose Skinner of Norfolk, Va., and called "the most beautiful girl in Virginia," was married to the novelist Feb. 27 last, in New York.

"The very idea of Mr. Howard saying I spent money extravagantly," said Mrs. Howard. "Why, I sat in our apartments in a common little hotel in England evenings darning his socks. Money! Why, he made me account for the last penny he gave me, and that wasn't much."

Says He Has a Temper.

According to his young wife, Howard has earned the title of "human brain storm."

"That man's temper was something awful," she continued. "The row that resulted in my leaving arose when his silk hat was mussed. At such slight things he would fume, his eyes turn glassy and his muscles set like stone. Ugh! he was terrible when he was that way.

"Once I inadvertently gave my purse with half a guinea in it to a friend and Mr. Howard chased me into a corner behind a soft, jumped on the sofa and choked me.

"Every night my husband would spend a long time beautifying himself. He used three kinds of hair tonic, had his face massaged, carefully powdered himself and brushed his hair. One day a friend of mine asked him if he did not want some of her rouge and that made him angry."

Romance Soon Ended.

The romance, which began suddenly in Baltimore, last February, lasted but a few hours, according to Mrs. Howard.

"On our way to England he began to have these paroxysms of anger," she said. "Not long after he told me that it had been a toss-up with him between me and another girl, and that I won the toss, for which he was sorry.

"And that wasn't all. He talked in his sleep horribly and used to tell how he had had a man crucified in the Philippines, with all the terrible details. I told him to see a physician about it, and a practitioner told him his nightly talks were due to his heavy brain work. My husband said he couldn't help lying some, because all great writers did that."

TWO BRIDGE ROBBERS RETURN POLICEMAN'S FIRE IN CHASE

One Man Is Caught After an Exciting Time, While the Other Escapes.

Believing him to be the man who has robbed pedestrians on the bridges between Twelfth street and Grand avenue, the police are holding "Wingey" Joyce for identification.

Patrolman Lindsay was crossing the Fourteenth street bridge and when half way across one of three men came toward him crying that he had been robbed. The other two ran. Lindsay followed firing. As they raced north toward Thirteenth street one of the fugitives returned the policeman's fire. At Thirteenth the two separated. One disappeared among some box cars and the other, with the policeman at his heels, ran to Poplar street, then east to Twelfth street and across the railroad yards to Papin and then to Thirteenth, and from there to La Salle, where he was caught. It was Joyce.

MRS. SCHROERS WILL RECOVER

With Her Husband She Is Hurt in Runaway Accident.

Mrs. Paul F. Schroers, who was injured Sunday afternoon when the buggy in which she and her husband were driving was struck by a northbound Broadway car, at Broadway and Russell avenue, will recover, her physician says.

Mr. and Mrs. Schroers were driving east in Russell avenue, when the horse became frightened. He bolted on to the tracks of an approaching northbound car.

Before the motorman could stop the car the buggy had been struck. Mr. and Mrs. Schroers were hurled from the buggy.

Uses Rubber Tube and Inhales Gas at Employer's Home.

Miss Jane J. Kelly, a domestic employed by George S. Reese of 3447 Laclede avenue, attached eight feet of rubber hose to a gas jet in her room and killed herself Sunday. Her employer found the woman's body. She was 45 years old. Ill health, it is believed, was the cause of the woman's action.

LAUNDRYMEN MEET HERE TO WASH OUT TROUBLES

State Convention Assembles in Burlington Building to Talk About Clean Clothes.

Laundrymen from all over Missouri began washing—no, not clothes or commonplace garments, but their troubles, Monday. After they have thoroughly accomplished this task they promise to set about devising ways and means to do your laundering better.

The Missouri State Laundrymen's Association is in annual convention in the Burlington Building. Sessions will be held Tuesday. Among the speakers are J. F. Brandon of Buffalo, president of the National Laundrymen's Association; L. H. Fischer of Kansas City, and F. W. Schoppenhorst of Louisville.

The officers of the association are: President, H. Frank Holman, Moberly; first vice-president, A. O. Long, Columbia; second vice-president, George Longan, Sedalia; secretary and treasurer, A. C. Spears, Kirksville; Board of Directors—H. F. Holman, Moberly; A. C. Spears, Kirksville; Frank Hood, Springfield; R. N. Emerson, St. Louis, and R. J. Gee, Moberly.

SHOT HIS SISTER, CAUGHT BY POSSE

Girl Blinded for Life as Result of Tragedy Near St. Joseph, Mo.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 17.—David Linn, a young farmer living five miles south of this city, was arrested last night by a vigilance committee, on the charge of shooting his sister, Mrs. Mollie Seymour, Saturday night, as she sat on the porch of her home in the dusk of the evening. Linn confessed that he had shot his sister, but said it was accidental.

Linn said he was going to the home of his sister and was climbing the fence and the trigger of the gun caught on a picket. The full charge was discharged in Mrs. Seymour's face and breast, both her eyes being put out. After the shooting Linn disappeared. The country was searched in every direction. Last night he was found sitting at the roadside near the farm of T. O. Parrish, a mile from his sister's home. He made no resistance when arrested.

Samuel Linn, father of David Linn and Mrs. Seymour, was arrested today and brought to the city. He will be held as a witness.

Mrs. Seymour and her brother quarreled a few days ago because young Linn, who lives a short distance from the Seymour home, had taken a young woman from the city to his farm to live with him. Linn's father lived with him and did not object to the presence of the girl.

At the time of the shooting the elder Linn was sitting on the Seymour porch with his daughter and her husband, Aaron Linn. They all saw the man approach the yard fence, about thirty feet from the porch, raise a shotgun to his shoulder and fire. They did not recognize him in the darkness, but on account of the quarrel between Mrs. Seymour and her brother, David Linn was suspected and a search for him was begun.

Physicians attending Mrs. Seymour say she will not die, but that she will be blind for life. She is a pretty young woman and in the neighborhood where she lives is a favorite.

CUPID HITS BACHELOR'S CLUB

Robs It of Dr. Uhlemeyer and Does Work Secretly.

Dr. H. A. Uhlemeyer of 1511 East Grand avenue will banquet the members of the North End Bachelors' Club, of which he has been president, to appease their wrath at his marriage, which took place secretly June 5 at Springfield, Ill., and which he kept quiet, he confesses, because he was afraid to let the club know of it.

No benedict may belong to the club, and a successor must be elected to Dr. Uhlemeyer. His bride, who was Miss Hattie Beeh of 3141 Glasgow place, 20 years old, lived with her parents until Sunday, in furtherance of the doctor's plan for secrecy.

Dr. Uhlemeyer began to fear that members of the club suspected his marriage, and decided the best way would be to confess and offer a banquet. So his wife moved to his home Sunday and her parents prepared announcements of the mariage, which were sent out Monday. Each member of the club got one.

The North End Bachelors' Club has 20 members, and meets at 2018 East Grand avenue. Dr. Uhlemeyer was an organizer and charter member.

BLUE RIBBON IDENTIFIED VISITOR

Uncle and Niece, Parted 18 Years, Meet at Station.

A blue ribbon on her dress was the mark by which Miss Katie Bocsht of Vincennes, Ind., made herself known to her uncle, Joseph Tucker, of 1763 Mississippi avenue, when she alighted from a train at the Union Station Monday morning.

She is 23 years old and her uncle had not seen her since she was 5. She came to visit his family.

Bricklayer Hit by Timber.

Alex. Bremer, a bricklayer on the Third National Bank Building, Broadway and Olive street, was struck on the head by a falling timber at 9 a. m. Monday and stunned. He was at work on the second floor at the east side of the building, but was not knocked into the alley. At the City Dispensary it was said he would recover. His home is at 3513 North Twentieth street.

STRANGE ERROR BY SURGEONS BRINGS ABOUT A WEDDING

Careless Medical Men Prove Able Aids to Cupids in Uniting Loving Couple.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NAHANT, Mass., June 17.—Miss Flora May Pard has just married Louis Roderique, a wealthy resident of Berlin, N. H.

The romance was indirectly due to the oversight of an eminent surgeon, who neglected to remove a sponge from the body of Miss Pard after performing an operation.

The operation was for tumor and was performed in a Boston hospital. She rapidly regained her strength, but suddenly became ill again, making a second operation imperative. She grew steadily weaker and was operated upon again and again before the sponge was discovered.

Then Miss Pard went to Berlin, N. H., to regain her health, and there met Roderique.

Roderique said today that he had consulted his attorneys, and a suit might result against the Boston hospital physician.

FRISCO'S MAYOR TO APPEAL HIS CASE

His Attorneys Say They Will Take It to U. S. Supreme Court if Necessary.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 17.—The Supervisors are making the preliminary steps today towards a reorganization of the city government.

Since the conviction of Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz there has been considerable alarm among those officials who hold their jobs by grace of the Mayor's favor. While it may be necessary to sweep out of office a large number of Schmitz's appointees, no one will be disturbed, it is said, who has attended to his duties.

No change has been made in the plan already announced to replace one of the Supervisors by a prominent citizen and then elect this citizen to the position of Acting Mayor. The name proposed had not been made public.

The attorneys for Mayor Schmitz, who is now in Jail awaiting sentence for extortion, announce their determination to take his case to the United States Supreme Court if Judge Dunne overrules their motion for a new trial on June 27 and the Appellate Court makes a similar denial.

J. G. Campbell of counsel for Schmitz said today:

"It is hardly to be expected that Judge Dunne will grant our motion for a new trial, but his refusal will not put an end to our activities. We will appeal to the Supreme Court of the State and to the higher tribunal at Washington if necessary."

WOMEN BRIDGE PLAYERS TO BUILD PANAMA CANAL

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 17.—The American woman's devotion to bridge is going to help toward the construction of the isthmian canal without the issuance of any more bonds.

It is estimated that by the end of the fiscal year, which will be the thirtieth of this month, 25,000,000 packs of playing cards will have been taken from the card factories for consumption.

It is presumed that the factories have been selling them about as fast as they can make them, because if the consumption reaches the figures mentioned it will be an increase over last year of about nine per cent, which is a large increase in such a steady industry as the manufacture of playing cards.

Each pack of playing cards pays a tax of 2 cents to the Government, and there is every indication that the income from that source will be $500,000—the amount that would accrue from the use of the 25,000,000 packs. Last year the consumption was a little less than 23,000,000.

Internal revenue officials do not care to what use the cards are put so they have no official knowledge of what caused the unusual increase. But most of them, being married men, suspect that bridge caused the increase.

MISS GRATZ SO BADLY HURT THAT SHE MAY NOT RECOVER

Girl Thrown From Her Horse Is Still Semi-Conscious in Doctor's Home.

Miss Hermine Gratz, the beautiful 19-year-old daughter of Benjamin Gratz, was taken to St. Luke's Hospital early Monday from the Gratz summer home at Glencoe, with concussion and hemorrhage of the brain and partial paralysis, received in being thrown from her favorite saddle horse Sunday evening near Eureka, St. Louis County.

An operation was planned, but little hope is entertained for her recovery. She recovered consciousness for only a few moments Sunday night, and was unconscious when taken to the hospital.

A passing Frisco train frightened Miss Gratz's horse. While unmanageable and plunging across the railroad track, the animal's hoof became caught and Miss Gratz shot over the horse's head, striking against a tie. Samuel P. Jordan of the Williams Grain Co. of St. Louis was with Miss Gratz, and removed her to the home of Dr. R. B. Denny, near by.

MR. HILL AGAIN.

James J. Hill, a day or two ago, expressed ıicago newspaper men an earnest desire for rivilege of silence concerning railroad af- and prospects. This desire was altogether nable and ought to have been respected. But s been rudely violated and set at naught by ain Mr. James J. Hill.

New York Mr. Hill has delivered himself of op-stitch or "open work," argument, show- ıo little cleverness in the art of verbal em- lery. But surely he did not intend it for gh wear and tear. It's altogether too flimsy tand hard usage.

'he railroads have come to a point where their dit must be guaranteed by the Federal Gov- nment, runs the argument, or they will be ndered useless for the service required of them the people. Indefinite betterment and extension demanded by industrial conditions, cannot be tempted without money; and money cannot be ıad on the railroads' ruined credit. Within the ıast six or seven months $800,000,000 has been raised, it is true; but this money has been used in paying "old bills," and not in development.

How or why railroad credit is "ruined" Mr. Hill does not try to make clear. If he means to say that ruin has come through recent exposure of ılroad "high finance" methods, then this is a ıfession of the essential weakness of those thods. How can the Government be expected guarantee credits based upon a proposed con- uance of methods confessedly weak?

Does he mean to say that ruin has been brought out by "agitation" or legislative activity? There l be no agitation by any considerable part of people for anything more than fair service at charges. In the matter of legislation, it to be clear enough that any possible loss d by a [illegible] 2-cent-fare bills will be much [illegible] by the operation of anti-pass aws rigorously enforced, and the effect of recent legislative y will be actually to increase railroad revenues.

[illegible] and the "old bills," there [illegible]den in the woodpile here- [illegible] official tabulation of [illegible] in recent years has [illegible] aggregate gain, both in gross and net earnings and a steady increase in the sums passed to dividends and surplus. Why, then, these "old bills" to the tune of $800,000,000?

Neither Mr. Hill nor any other member of the fraternity will undertake to say that new railroad securities would not be marketable if they were free from suspicion. And if they are open to suspicion, then talk of Government guaranty is futile, foolish.

The problem is one for the railroads to solve by the adoption of sound economic methods. The labor of solution is not to be passed over to the Government at this day for the railroads' benefit.

BURDENING CITY BUSINESS.

It is natural enough and also commendable for License Collector Alt to rejoice that he has "forged ahead" this year until he has recorded as taxed an increase of 1654 vehicles, drawn by horses, for the first half of this year over the whole of last.

This gives more revenue to the City Treasury. It also shows that there are more vehicles in use to move more freight through the streets, and more horses at work drawing vehicles of all kinds for more people.

That is gratifying also. But it is not a gratifying result of the license system that it should be used not for real regulation, but for "revenue only" until the returns from it are made a tax on the movement of the city's trade. It is no longer a question of regulating such vehicles as need it, but of taxing trade.

Many of these vehicles were used in moving goods which bring into the city the support for its population. It is only by this trade movement that a city population can be supported at all. Hence to get the best possible support for itself, a city population must use its common sense in keeping its trade movement as free as possible.

Licensing the horse vehicles which help to move business as part of the city's general system of terminals is now a part of a systematic use of the licensing power, far outside of its original purposes. It is used to get revenues out of the city's business movement wherever there is an opening for it. It is not good business, or good political economy or good sense.

PASSING OF THE DOUBLOON.

On Aug. 31 next the doubloon will cease to have a legal status in Trinidad and Tobago, and with its passing something more will be lost to the romance of the Spanish Main.

The Isabella doubloon, a $5 coin first minted in Spain in 1848, is current in Cuba. But the doubloon of the pirate and buccaneer which figured in all properly told tales of buried treasure and dead men's gold and which in Midshipman Easy's purse excited the cupidity of the murderous padrone, is doomed. It seems odd that its last stronghold should be a British possession and that this Spanish piece of the eighteenth century should survive into the twentieth as a coin of King Edward's realm.

The doubloon owed its name to the fact that it was double the value of a pistole ($4). When the Spanish mints ceased coining it in 1848 it was rated at $7.87. The name was indiscriminately applied to a double doubloon current throughout the West Indies in the first half of the nineteenth century and the value of which was fixed by proclamation in 1838 at $15.24.

The doubloon thus meets the fate of other coins of romantic association—the guinea, so-called because first minted in 1663 from gold brought from Guinea; the ducat, or "duke's coin," of Italy, now surviving in Austria, with its glory gone; the French livre and louis, the Napoleon, the Spanish pistole and the Portuguese moidore. Robinson Cruso and "pieces of eight" (reals) are still a legal tender, but the "jingle of the guinea" and "dead for a ducat, dead" must now be taken figuratively. From our own circulating medium have gone the "Spanish milled dollars," dear to chronicles of colonial times.

TEACHING AND BUSINESS.

After six months in a "business college," a young woman who has been graduated from a St. Louis High School, can begin earning a living at once. If she really learned 80 per cent of what she is supposed to have learned at the high school and business college, she will be in demand and her salary will go up as far as her energy forces it towards its present limits.

If, however, she leaves the high school for the "normal" and educates herself for a teacher, the chance of beginning to earn a living at once when the Normal College dismisses her as fit is still remote.

In this connection we have the opinion of a former member of the St. Louis School Board, who says that "the requirement of a year's gratuitous work" in the classroom accounts for whatever scarcity of teachers there is to explain.

This will appeal to competent young women who have a living to make. They will be almost certain to think it highly rational. In business, disinterestedness ends with the end of the years required to become fit for business. Honest and immediate pay for what work is worth is business. A city must deal with its employes on the business basis, if it expects the results of good business in education or anywhere else. Adequate pay for efficient work is the only sound basis of relationship between employer and employe, whether the employment be public or private.

WITH POST-DISPATCH POETS AND HUMORISTS

THE CLASS POEM.

June is the month of 'em. Well do we know 'em
For their perpetual worth intellectual,
For their enduringness and their alluringness,
Music of birds in 'em, wonderful words in 'em,
Grecian mythology, perfect philology,
Bits of Plutarch in 'em, Noah, his ark, in 'em,
Rome has a place in 'em, beauty and grace in 'em,
Great is their clarity, Faith, Hope and Charity
All are defined in 'em, gems of the mind in 'em,
Plato and Pericles, lines from Euripides,
Legends of Greece in 'em, Jason, his fleece, in 'em,
Gifted Demosthenes, hopeful Diogenes,
Measured the beat of 'em, faultless the feet of 'em,
Caesar, his Gauls, in 'em, Troy and its walls in 'em,
Storied Philemon and Neptune the seaman,
Something of Pan in 'em, arms and the man in 'em,
All the world's history, life and its mystery,
Music and art in 'em, great Bonaparte in 'em,
Mighty the sweep of 'em, all that is deep in 'em,
Shelley, his lark, in 'em, Miss Joan of Arc in 'em,
Shakspeare and Pope in 'em, Ben Jonson dope in 'em,
All that is good in 'em, all that we would in 'em,
Markham, his hoe, in 'em, all that we know in 'em,
Wondrous the strength of 'em, endless the length of 'em,
Deathless the rhyme in 'em, June is the time of 'em.

IN THE WORKSHOP.

Webster was dictating his dictionary.

"Put down common sense," he said, following with the definition.

"Never mind," said Webster, "we'll let it go at that. But it's a misnomer. It's really very uncommon."

AT THE WEDDING.

"Why does everybody turn the presents upside down?"

"I'll tell you that if you will tell me which are presents and which are the things put in here by the family to deceive the guests."

PROVIDED.

"Dear, may I take the children up to some Northern resort for a few weeks?"

"Yes, if none of you will write me a letter on birch bark."

IN MIDAIR.

"Who am I?" asked the baby, looking up at the stork.

"You're the son of a millionaire," said the stork.

PROOF.

"Are you sure your scales are correct?" asked the lady of the iceman.

Written Especially for the Post-Dispatch

By Clark McAdams.

WHAT'S the news from Petersburg—from long-quiescent Petersburg,
From Cossack-ridden Petersburg, where Nicholas is Czar?
The Prospekt and begin to form in hollow squares for war?

Duma? Eh! D'ye mean to say they're up against some more
O' that dissolvin' business like he gave 'em once before?

What's the news from Petersburg—from far and bloody Petersburg,
From bomb-accursed Petersburg, where Liberty's enthralled?
What's the latest from the front, and what's Oppression's newest stunt,

Army? Eh! D'ye mean to say the Duma's got to quit
Civilizin' Russia, lest she get too much of it?

What's the news from Petersburg—from bureau-maddened Petersburg,
Hark, the revolution song! A nation, terrible and strong,
Is rising to avenge the wrong of thinking they are sheep.

Faithless, eh? D'ye mean to say that Nicholas has lied
About the Constitution, and his pledge will not abide?
Nicholas, fool Nicholas, poor royal suicide!

TEMPER STORMS SPOIL BEAUTY.

Good Advice for Post-Dispatch Daughters

BY MARGARET HUBBARD AYER.

AN unrestrained fit of temper has almost as serious effect upon the general health and leaves as deep a mark on the face as a bad illness might have done. A temper could just as well have been called a tempest. It is really a physical storm, in some natures swooping down with great suddenness from a clear sky; with others giving its warning beforehand by a sullen lowering of the mental heaven, black looks and finally a great burst. These latter temper storms are probably the most injurious. They sweep up the coast, as it were, leaving destruction in their path. The blood is lashed into fury and rushes into the head, the secretion of bile is stirred up and the whole system is soured and embittered. The eyes are bloodshot and the lines deepen in the face.

These great "West Indian storm" tempers are not so frequent. People are learning to control themselves more and more all the time. But the small tempers, I am sorry to say, happen often enough, and every time one is permitted to rage it carries its own punishment, a fit of indigestion, a sick headache and always wrinkles—lines which drag the corners of the mouth down and change the face into a telltale map.

Our physical and mental beauty is so indisolubly mingled that I often think if only a facial masseuse could smooth out the wrinkles from our characters she would not have to manipulate the face muscles at all, and if the doctor who treats us for biliousness would only command us to restrain our fits of temper, which lash and disturb these bitter secretions, we should be healthy, hearty people, with clearer skins and fine appetites.

PAY FOR WEDDING SERVICE.

BRITAIN has been generous in rewarding her soldiers. Perhaps the Duke of Wellington came off best in this respect. In his earlier peninsular campaign he was granted a pension of $10,000 a year for two generations, and on the conclusion of the peninsular war in 1812 he was voted $500,000 for the purchase of an estate. After Waterloo the Government bought for him the estate of Strathfieldsaye at a cost of $1,315,000. Lord Wolseley received a grant of $125,000 on completing his Ashanti campaign; Sir Hugh Gough for the Sikh war an annuity of $10,000; Sir Colin Campbell $10,000 for wiping out the Indian mutiny, and Sir Henry Havelock for the relief of Lucknow $5000 a year. Coming to more recent times, Lord Roberts received $500,000 for his services in the South African campaign, and Lord Kitchener received $150,000 after Omdurman.

A Spiritual Suggestion for Today

LET us pursue our child's play while we are children, but do not let us be engrossed by it; and if our baby-houses and castles fall to pieces, do not let it grieve us overmuch. When the evening comes, and we must needs seek shelter, we shall not be able to find it in any such make-believe dwellings, but only in our Father's house.—Francis de Sales.

Favors Park Railway.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I am pleased to notice that the art-loving ladies of the city of St. Louis are advocating a street railroad to the Art Museum in Forest Park, and I agree with them that it is a public affair just as much as the park is, and that it is a very tiresome journey through the park, especially during the summer months.

C. W. HOFFMAN, Artist.

Too Old at 50?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I am a native of the United States and a citizen of St. Louis, residing at 4432 Alaska avenue. I went to an employment agency, satisfied them I am a good salesman, good buyer and good collector and desired them to get for me a position—subject, of course, to their terms. I told them I was 50 years old, but physically and mentally as capable as men generally are at 35. The agent thereupon said it was useless for me to list, as I was too old.

Can't you suggest, through the columns of your widely read paper, some means whereby a man over 50, out of employment and strong and able and willing to work at any occupation he understands, may obtain honorable employment to keep soul and body together without becoming a criminal?

Maplewood's Incorporation.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In your issue of June 12 there appears a communication from some one shielding himself behind the nom de plume "Taxpayer," in the attempt to belittle a well-organized plan to incorporate Maplewood and Greenwood. My friend is apparently opposed to the plan on account of it being a help to the merchant and the contractors. At least this is what he says. The merchant and the builders who would no doubt profit by incorporation, as the residence owner would then be forced to bear the burden of the sprinkling, etc. I would like to ask him who bears the burden of the sprinkling, etc., right now? This great explainer further says that taxes will be doubled and trebled, and cites Webster as an horrible example; goes on to state that all sidewalk and street improvements would be assessed against the property where these improvements are made, and winds up with the very inconsistent statement that the whole business would be detrimental to the further development of this most beautiful suburb. As to just how the incorporation will retard the growth of the town and at the same time create a rush of business for the merchants and builders, I do not comprehend. As a matter of course, the property owner will be assessed for improvements made abutting his property; who under the shining sun would "Taxpayer" have pay it? The mode of procedure now is, one man is public spirited enough and blessed with sufficient civic pride to construct a sidewalk in front of his own property, and walk in the mud along his neighbor's property. This will be remedied under articles of incorporation—if the property owner refuses to make the improvement the city will do it for him and assess the cost against the property. This is just exactly what we are driving at. We want equal rights to all and special privileges to none. At present all improvements made in this town are accomplished by private subscriptions. All get the benefit, but all do not pay. God has done much for Maplewood; man very little. Let's get busy! In conclusion, relative to the taxes, the fire insurance in Webster is some 20 per cent cheaper than in Maplewood and the taxes in Webster are not 3 per cent.

Presidential Idiosyncrasies.

From the Providence Journal.

A book, or, at least, an essay, might be written upon the desirability of a generous self-restraint in all of us which should make us scrupulously careful of our treatment of others, even if we know that our position or influence, or the self-restraint of our friends, renders us immune from penalty. The President will be ranked, a half century hence, as one of the greatest of our chief magistrates; his idiosyncrasies will seem of as little account as those of which the franker biographers of Andrew Jackson tell; and for that reason he can afford, when he pleases, to be brusque or angry or accusatory. He can shake his fist at a humble nature-writer or pronounce a Boston capitalist a liar; and it will not materially abate his popularity. He knows that all but his sternest critics will palliate his methods by recourse to the convenient verdict that he had the defects of his qualities. Yet is is doubtful if a man has a right to take frequent advantage of such knowledge.

THE SMEAR.

BY IVAN WHIN.

VARIETY is the spice of life. I wonder who said that for the first time. Mahala, she of the ebon countenance, says: "If people wasn't all different there wouldn't be any fun living." Uncle Anthony remarks: "It's a good thing we don't all want the same thing, 'cause most of us wouldn't get it."

Now, if you wait for someone to ask you to join the Masons, or the Evening Star, or things like that, you'll never join. The etiquette of opening negotiations for membership, with them, compels you to make application without solicitation.

But to even hint that you would like to join the P. E. O. sisterhood, the Sigma Nu fraternity or things like that makes you anathema; you have shown bad taste, bad form and oh, you are just im-poss-ible! You must not even butt in where the sisters or frats are flocking; you may only be on your best behavior in the hope that you will be asked to join.

You see the different points of view.

In either case heart-burnings are unavoidable, for, if one applies where applications are permitted, one may be blackballed; and, though one behave his or her prettiest, those who abhor applications may never ask one.

It's a dull old world for smears.

What is a smear?

What do YOU know about that?

I got that word from a college girl's vocabulary. Listen closely when college girls converse; there are many strange words in their vocabulary. I listened and came to the conclusion that a smear was—let us get it out in dictionary style:

> SMEAR, n.—1. A person who does not belong.
> 2. A youth who does not wear his clothes well.
> 3. A girl who——

Honest now, I would rather not complete the definition. No. 3 can only be put into shrugs of the shoulders and lifted eyebrows, never into words; it's too indefinite for words.

Rosalie was a smear—not the Rosalie you know, not the Rosalie whose brother is a star in athletics; no, indeed, no! This is quite another Rosalie. You must not think you can trace her by any clews in this story, because, really, her name isn't Rosalie. I do not purpose running risks of bodily injury.

Rosalie was a smear. She wore nice clothes; she was not pretty, but then girls who are not smears are as little worthy of the beauty prize. She was all right in her study, not so perfect that she made other girls look like a Chinese cash, and not so dull that she annoyed the profs. until they flunked her for spite. She had a normal girl appetite for fudge et als, admired the boys as whole-heartedly and as reservedly as other girls—it's hopeless; I cannot tell you why she was a smear.

Rosalie fixed her large brown eyes on one of the sororities. It would not be wise in me to give you the true name of this sorority; we will fix up a nom de Ivan Whin for it; we will call it the Alpha Omega because there is no sorority of that name.

Rosalie's friend Frances is a sister in the Alpha Omega. Rosalie and Frances were reared on the same block, went to the same grammar school, went to Central High and then to the U. Their mothers and their fathers and their brothers were friends.

Wasn't it sad? The girls rushed Frances nearly to death and never cast [illegible] glance in Rosalie's direction.

Do you know what it is to be rushed? It's like this: The girls of a sorority decide that you are all right, that nature did not intend you to be a Theta or anything but an Alpha Omega. You are asked to join. You say you'll ask mamma. The nicest girls invite you to their homes and you invite them to your home and mamma sees what nice girls they are, and they lie in wait for you and show you a good time between Greek and psychology or chem. and English, and if one of the girls has roses or candy she makes it a special point to divide with you, and they introduce you to perfectly good-looking youths, and perhaps there are matinee tickets and a whole lot of other things to make you look upon Alpha Omega as just the best ever.

Rosalie, looking on while Frances was being rushed, dreamed dreams. After Frances was initiated Rosalie had hopes. Hope was a long time dying. She tried to fuss Ruth and Hazel. They were perfectly sweet to her, but that's all. Even Julia, of the adorable dimples, the ever-amiable Julia, did not respond when they met at church and talked of doings at the U.

When Alpha Omega rushed Edith, hope revived, and I cannot see why it should not. Of course, Edith is pretty; but, otherwise, I cannot see any distinction of type between Edith and Rosalie. The girls can see a distinction and it is that which makes Edith a darling and Rosalie a—poor girl, we won't say it again.

When Helen complained that her sisters left all the dish washing after spreads to the freshies, and Rosalie said she just loved to wash dishes, Helen did not seem to hear. But that was only a minor detail in the long tale of woe.

Even the smears shared in the excitements when the Thetas and the Alpha Omegas rushed Zaida. That was a heart-moving season. The frats took a hand, Betas for Thetas and Sigmas for Alpha Omegas.

Harry was told off by his frat for an Alpha Omega fusser. He brought out his auto to show Zaida where the flowers grow and the joys of being in the right set. Wynne, working for the opposition, waylaid Zaida as she was coming from German, drew her away to a secluded nook, on a pretense of needing her help with his prose, and told a funny story to match every one she told. And that is going some.

If it had not been for the Dutch boy, [illegible] dykes would have given way and [illegible] was the hissing of geese that saved Rome from some disaster away back there.

Remember the humble, who have often done the work of the great.

It was Rosalie who saved the day.

Now all this rushing is supposed to be as secret as the initiatory goat. Yet it seldom is. Everybody who is awake gets to know when a girl is being rushed by two sororities. Rosalie knew and sympathized with the Alpha Omegas. They had slighted and ignored her, but she loved them. Perhaps, therein lies an explanation, but we will not stop for it.

She had seen Wynne's heady work and she knew where he was going over his prose with Zaida.

Harry did not know. He called on Julia to aid in the search. She sent Amy and Shriley to the dorm and Hope and Louise to the library and gave scouting assignment to Elise and Alice. They could not find their girl anywhere. My! what a tearing of hair. Was she lost to them. Had she been lured to the lair of the Thetas and hopelessly committed? Harry was as wild as the girls. He brushed by Rosalie in the quad and did not hear her call to him. Presently he rushed back.

"You looking for Zaida?" she asked timidly.

The impetuous youth paused. He knew she was a—was not an Alpha Omega; but he paused and she hurried away.

Her face betokened pain when she came in sight of Zaida and Wynne. Her voice was burdened with suffering as she called:

"Zaida, Zaida, please come here!"

Down the steps bounded the sympathetic, long-lost girl.

"What is it, child?" she asked. "What's the matter?"

"Oh, come out in the quad where I can tell you," moaned Rosalie.

Thus was Zaida lured into the open, thus was she thrust into the maw—no, the arms—ah, no, I don't mean that. I only mean that Harry was there and Julia and others and before Zaida knew "where she was at" she was in Harry's auto with Hope and Julia.

Before they had gone five miles it was settled. Zaida capitulated and the rushers came back joyous.

And the funny part is that when all the story was told the girls said Rosalie was a darling. They talked and talked until it appeared that all were agreed that if she were a smear, once, she had improved. The stigma was removed, and they asked her to be their sister.

"I don't know," she said. "I'll ask mamma."

BACHELOR REFORM

ROBERT L. THOMAS of New York, who has been a sportsman and a bachelor for a considerable number of years, and who is now quoted as a millionaire, is about to marry Miss Irma Treat, a beautiful Washington girl, and because he is going to make this departure in one respect, he is going to make another departure in another respect; that is, he is going to abandon the turf for good, so as to be able to devote all of his attention to his wife, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

Every time he thinks of the delights he has missed by reason of his single life through all these years, he makes an egipram intended at once to show how deeply conscious he is woman's loveliness and how deeply resentful he is that all the other old bachelors in the country are not enslaved as he is. Here are some of his sayings:

The man who doesn't marry should be so heavily taxed that he would be finally compelled to, or his class should be exterminated.

Bachelors are reckless, unreliable, and morally bad.

A man might have $80,000,000, but he would not be happy if he did not have a wife and family to share it with him.

The world is full of charming women. When a man excuses his bachelorhood because he did not meet the right person, you may put it down that he is too lazy or selfish to seek her. More often he has no love in his heart. And that's why I say a bachelor is no good. Shun him!

MRS. JARR ON NEIGHBORLINESS.

By Roy L. McCardell.

"PEOPLE don't seem neighborly, like they used to, when I was a girl," said Mrs. Jarr, apropos of nothing.

"The less neighborly they are the better I like it," said Mr. Jarr, kicking off his slippers and putting his stockinged feet upon the window sill. "Other people do things and it's no concern of mine, and I do things and it's no concern of theirs!"

"But you do things that are concerns of mine," said Mrs. Jarr, "and I do wish you would observe the little niceties of life, such as, say, putting on your slippers, and also, while you are about it, putting on your coat!"

"Anything else?" growled Mr. Jarr

"Yes," said Mrs. Jarr, "you might take your feet down off the window before you put your slippers on and when you get them on keep them off."

"How can I keep my slippers off if I put them on or put them on if I keep them off?" asked Mr. Jarr.

"You know what I mean," said Mrs. Jarr. "Put your slippers on your feet and keep your feet off the window sill; what will the neighbors think?"

"What do I care what they think?" said Mr. Jarr with a growl. "Do they pay my rent, do they meet my bills? Let them mind their own business!"

"They will mind it so much that they will cut us, you may be sure of that," said Mrs. Jarr, "if they see you sitting there in your shirt sleeves, with no collar or cravat, and your feet up on the window."

"What were you saying people are not neighborly any more for?" asked Mr. Jarr, as he complied with his wife's requests.

"Why look how it is in sickness now," said Mrs. Jarr. "If you are living in a flat and your neighbors see the doctor come around, they stop him in the hall and and ask him if it's anything contagious. All they seem to think about is that it may be catching. If the doctor gives them no satisfaction or if they don't believe him, they write anonymous letters to the Board of Health."

"That's only a proper precaution when people live so crowded," said Mr. Jarr.

"Ah, it was different in the old days when I was a girl," said Mrs. Jarr, with a sigh. "As soon as it was known that any grown person or a child was sick, all the neighbors called and asked if they could do anything. They brought jellies and delicate dishes and they took turns sitting up at night and nursing the sick folk."

"And carried the sickness home with them," said Mr. Jarr. "The modern way of calling in a trained nurse is better."

"Calling in a trained nurse is all very well for rich folks that don't care if their poor relations die and hope their rich relations will," said Mrs. Jarr. "Let a person of moderate means try to have a trained nurse once. The trained nurse will only work so many hours and will make you get another nurse to work at night, that's two—then they have so much waiting on that it makes more work than if you did the nursing yourself, and the nurses always order the servants around and the servants quit—they always do if you have sickness, anyway. Oh, the good-hearted old ways when a neighbor helped a neighbor were far better!"

"Here's a chance for you, then," said Mr. Jarr. "I met Mr. Rangle when I was coming home and he told me his little boy had the measles and they had no servant—you'd better run over."

"And bring the measles back home to my children, who have never had them?" asked Mrs. Jarr. "Not much! Let the Rangles send for a nurse, that's what I'd do!"

WHEN HIGH OFFICE WAS ON OPEN SALE.

WELL into the nineteenth century the sale of a place in the House of Commons was considered to be as honorable a transaction as the purchase of a commission in the army. ""I have seen an advertisement," wrote Prof. Pryme, "before Grampound was disfranchised, offering a borough for sale, as not only to be sold, but sold by order of the Court of Chancery. A short time before the reform bill Lord Monson paid £100,000 for Gatton, which contained about twenty-five houses and rather more than one hundred inhabitants."

True Flavors

With great care, by a process entirely his own, Dr. Price is enabled to extract from each of the true, select fruits, all of its characteristic flavor, and place in the market a class of flavorings of rare excellence. Every flavor is of great strength and perfect purity. For flavoring ice-cream, jellies, cake, custards, etc.,

WHAT MARY SAID.

Judge Brewer cites a striking example of the sort of spoke which the trickster can surreptitiously insert in the wheels of justice. A witness testified in a certain case that a person named Mary was present when a particular conversation took place, and the question was asked, "What did Mary say?" This was objected to, and after some discussion the Judge ruled out the question. An "exception" to this decision was immediately taken, and on appeal the higher court reversed the verdict and ordered a new trial on the ground that the question should have been answered. At the second trial the same inquiry was propounded and elicited the information that Mary said nothing!—Frederick Trevor Hill, in Putnam's.

CHESS PLAYED OUT OF DOORS.

A Novel Game Played by Students and Faculty Organizations at Columbia University.

[illegible] as uneasy lies the head that wears a blue crown at Columbia University the other morning. The Columbia University Chess Club, a students' organization, was playing the Faculty Chess Club in a novel outdoor game of chess. The students' red checkmated the faculty blue in about thirty-five moves, after giving the blue king a lively chase.

It was a new method of playing. The chessmen are a recent invention called the Felix set. They are of papier-mache, about two feet high, the figures in low relief, resting upon an oval gold shield. They lie flat, and in the center of each figure is a ring with which they are moved by means of long poles with hooks at the end. The board is made of white muslin, the blocks being sewed together, with a band around the edge, and the greensward upon which they are laid forms the alternate blocks between. The whole makes a board about fifty feet square.

The figures were of red and blue. The kings were dignified individuals in long robes, the queens amiable dames with the hair done in a high knot on the top of the head. The bishop was represented by a miter, the knights and rooks by the conventional horses' heads and castle, and the pawns were masculine figures holding shields.

South Field, in One Hundred and Sixteenth street, between Broadway and Amsterdam avenue, was the scene of the game, which was played in the shadow of the dormitories. The college chess enthusiasts formed several rows around the players, with here and there a pretty young woman in a light gown.

Dr. H. B. Mitchell, professor of mathematics, represented the faculty, and Otto Brown, a Columbia senior, the students' club. The doctor began his play with a vigorous attack. Brown held his own comfortably, and things looked close until the fifteenth move. Dr. Mitchell made a slight miscalculation then in the movement of a pawn, and the faculty's side made a loss it never regained.

"Hurry up, Brown," called the students as their representative stopped and studied over a move. Some of the rooters showed what they would do by gestures.

"Is this your man?" asked Dr. Mitchell, urbanely, as he hooked up a red pawn and deposited it outside the square.

"Yes," said Brown, as he moved a red knight up to the blue king. "Check."

"I'll have to run home," said the professor of mathematics, hooking his king back to the front row.

History has shown that it is a bad thing for a king to run. It is no exception in chess. The blue king, having started, was kept on the run until cornered by the red rook and queen. The students' side announced "mate," and the University Club had beaten the Faculty Club, the game lasting three-quarters of an hour.

Otto Brown, who played and arranged for the game yesterday, says the contest will be an annual affair and that checkers will also be played on the greensward board. With lanterns, games will be played in the evening as well as in the daytime.

The club does not own the men, which are expensive, being valued at $125. Outdoor chess is not a novelty, but heretofore it has been played with human chessmen, dressed as knights, rooks and pawns for spectacular effect.

FRENCH JOKES

At School.

Master: If your friend borrows 1000 francs, agreeing to pay 50 francs a month, how much will he owe at the end of the year?

Pupil: A thousand francs.

"That may be, but I know my friend."

Mistress and Maid.

"I have been told that you were lovemaking out in the field, and this greatly displeases me."

"Oh, ma'am, so it does me. I should prefer a nice drawing room."

A New Invention.

"I have read that some genius of a shirtmaker has invented a shirt without buttons."

"Do you call that a novelty? I have worn them without buttons ever since my wife became devoted to the Cause of Women!"

Astute Youth.

"May I kiss you, mademoiselle?"

"No; the kiss is a propagater of microbes."

"Then give it to me; I am not afraid of microbes."

A great man was complaining of all the charities to which he was forced to contribute.

"I give without counting," he groaned.

"Yes, but not without recounting," replied a friend.

Modesty Personified.

The Club Woman: You have no mind of your own, you microbe! You're merely one of those persons who think they think!

Only Her Husband: You flatter me, dear; I often fancy that I imagine that I only suspect I think!

An Industrious Litterateur.

Newscads: I want the complete works of that man that's edited so many of the standard authors.

Newscads: That feller, De Luxy

NO NIGHTINGALES THERE.

THE nightingale favors some districts and shuns others. Scotland it does not visit; but a century ago a patriotic Scotsman tried to establish the nightingale in that country. He commissioned a London dealer to purchase nightingales' eggs, one shilling each being given for them. These were well packed in wool and sent to Scotland by mail coach. A number of men had previously been engaged to take special care of all robin redbreasts' nests in places where the eggs could be hatched in safety. The robins' eggs were removed and replaced by those of the nightingale, which were hatched and reared by their foster mothers. When full fledged the young nightingales seemed perfectly at home near the places where they first saw [illegible]; and in September, the usual period of migration, they departed. [illegible] nightingales never returned to Scotland. It has been suggested that it was not the climate they objected to so much as the difficulty of acquiring the accent.

WOMAN BEFORE GRAND JURY IN A MURDER CASE

REED INQUIRY RESUMED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO, Mo., June 17.—The special grand jury investigating the Reed murder mystery reconvened this morning, promising to hold even a longer session than the Coroner's jury, which consumed 10 days.

Sallie Brownfield of St. Louis will appear before the grand jury today. David Brownfield, her father, testified Saturday and the other members of the family will very likely appear in the case this week.

Minnie Adkins was subpenaed this week, though what connection she has with the case cannot be ascertained. She is a servant and has been employed at the same place some of the Brownfield women have.

Sallie Brownfield arrived here Saturday night in company with an officer who went to St. Louis to serve a subpena on her. She is expected to throw some light on the matter and clear up part of the mystery at least.

John Q. McDermott of St. Louis will arrive here today and probably take the stand Tuesday to tell of Syrett and Reed's connection in a business way.

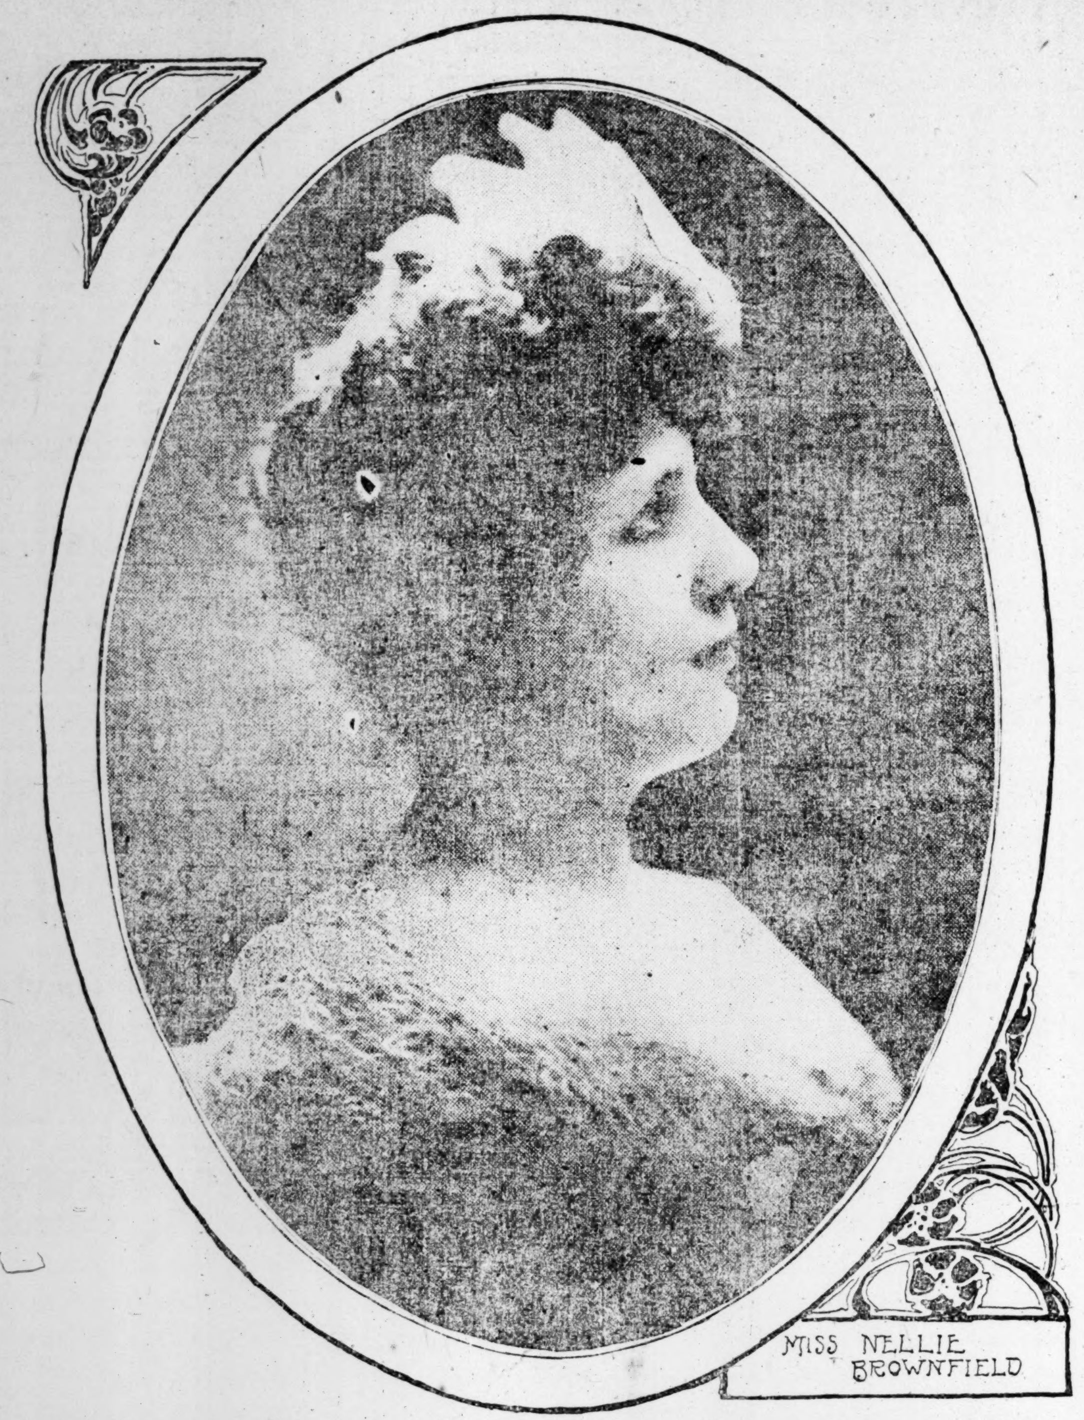
YOUNG WOMAN WHO IS A WITNESS TODAY IN INVESTIGATION OF THE REED MURDER



GOT HIS MONEY BACK IN SPEED

Leo Hussey Rented Auto for $50 and Was Fined $10 for Scorching.

Three speed violators were fined $10 and costs each in the City Hall Police Court Monday on their pleas of guilty.

John Dean, chauffeur for an automobile company, was in a car with Leo Hussey, brother of Frank Hussey, and two young women, when arrested Saturday night on King's highway. Patrolman Stinger said the machine was going 25 miles an hour. Hussey had had the automobile 10 hours at $5 an hour, Stinger says he was told.

Robert Stuart Jr. of 4368 Lindell boulevard was driving his car 25 miles an hour between Newstead avenue and King's highway, he admitted. He paid his fine.

ROOSEVELT IS A WILD ENGINE, DR. DAY INSISTS

Head of Syracuse University Declares Trust Leaders Are Far Greater.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., June 16.—"Before the death of John Hay, President Roosevelt was comparatively safe and sane, because he allowed himself to be guided in a large measure by that truly great statesman. Since then he has been a wild engine—you know what a wild engine is!

Calmly and seriously Dr. James Roscoe Day, chancellor of Syracuse University, thus summed up his estimate of the man he believes to be a menace not only to our freedom, but to the right development of civilization; the man he characterizes as the most astute politician this country has ever seen; the man he regards as a false guide, who is leading Americanism into a marsh of socialism, and whose aims and desires, if not checked, will land this nation in the ditch. And here is the other side of the picture he draws:

"Men like Rockefeller, Harriman, Hill, Morgan and the late Mr. Cassatt are not only superior to Roosevelt and his kind in integrity and ability, but they are giants by comparison. They are the advance agents of a higher form of civilization than any we have known, and they are attacked and dogged because the little men in Washington are not able to appreciate them and their work.

He Praises Trust Leaders.

Just and calmly and seriously Dr. Day added this tribute to his strictures upon the President and his policies. With marked sincerity he lauded the great capitalists and corporationists as the only real statesmen of our day; as men ahead of their times, who are wholly misunderstood, and treated by the Government as if they were wrong-doers, instead of the most valuable citizens we have.

"And as for this relegation of the powers of the Government to rampant, smelling commissions, composed of men who have no practical knowledge of the matters they are empowered to settle, it is monstrous, monstrous!" he continued. "The object of our form of government is not to make men holy, but to make them free, and this end is not to be reached through the legal interference of ignorant commissions.

"I honestly believe that unless the American people come to their senses, as I feel they must before long, we shall find ourselves separated from the high standards and ideals on which our Government was founded, and by which it was fostered and strengthened until this astute politician in Washington began to run wild.

"I honestly believe that unless we call a halt, this oligarchy of commissions to which we are now forced to submit will give place to the rankest forms of Socialism and even anarchy."

"And what would be your remedy for this state of affairs?" he was asked.

"Stop Attacking Corporations."

"The question is too large to be answered offhand," he replied, "and it is embarrassed by elements thrust into it by the unfortunate attacks upon corporate business. In the first place, stop these assaults, from the President to the press.

"These great corporate managers will give us more wisdom than all the presidential speeches, fiction writers, frenzied magazines and the public press have given us in the last two years. From the latter we have reaped nothing but disaster.

"You call me a radical," he said, "but I do not consider myself in that class at all. I am a conservative, seeking to do what I can to conserve the fundamental principles of our form of government, and you people who are applauding and upholding Roosevelt in his impulsive rush are the radicals. A few years from now you will realize it, and let us hope that realization may not come too late."

Chancellor Day has been a Methodist minister 35 years. Ten years ago he accepted the position he now holds.

It is said he has personally raised nearly $4,000,000 for the university thus far. Of this sum several hundred thousands have come from Mr. Archbold of Standard Oil. He is a man of works as well as words. His energy is in keeping with his physicality. He believes what he says. He looks upon present-day tendencies as represented by the policies and practices of the President as the immediate forerunners of our doom.

"But you lay the blame for these conditions upon one man," was suggested when he had done with Roosevelt. "Do you not attribute a large part of the present attitude of the people to an awakening of the public conscience?"

"By no means, by no means, sir. The public conscience has little or nothing to do with it. The public—mind, conscience and all—is for the time being blinded by this creature of impulse, who lacks judgment and foresight; this man who is not able to comprehend the true significance of the men he is persecuting, the industries he is crippling."

"Do you attribute his attitude to personal ambition?" was asked.

There was a moment's silence. Then the chancellor began slowly, "Suppose Theodore Roosevelt has made up his mind that his administration shall go down into history as the greatest period of governmental activity, regardless of results, that this country ever saw! Suppose he is imbued with a desire to stand out as the President who did more stirring-up than any other! Suppose he is working along these lines!"

"Do you suppose," however, that he would exercise his personal ambition to the peril of the people?" was asked.

"I hardly think he would do this meaningly," answered the doctor. "But he has not the ability or statesmanship to take such things into consideration. He is heedless of results. He is aided and abetted by men like himself, politicians, while the real statesmen, the giants of the commercial and corporate world, are used only for targets, and insulted rather than consulted.

He Defends the Packers.

"Take, for instance, the manner in which President Roosevelt got after the packers in the so-called 'beef scandal.' Do you or does anyone imagine that Upton Sinclair wrote 'The Jungle' because of a mighty and overpowering desire to help suffering humanity? He wrote that book for the purpose that most persons write books nowadays—to make money. And when he had finished it, he was clever enough to place the advance sheets in the hands of the right man for his purpose.

"As to the Standard Oil Co., which was assailed chiefly for the purpose of getting through Congress the denatured alcohol bill, it is a great business, conducted on principles that have for years been accepted in the commercial world as fair and honorable.

Persecution of Oil Trust.

"The Standard Oil is being tried in a court hundreds of miles from its main offices, and while the trial is in progress a report condemning its methods and practices is issued by a man named Smith—Herbert Knox Smith—who, without previous knowledge of its affairs, and with perhaps no practical knowledge at all on such matters, tries and condemns it through the newspapers before the courts have had any chance to render a verdict regarding the legality of its practices."

"The rebate question is a business proposition," he said. "To illustrate: I have two horses that I will be sending to my place in the Adirondacks soon. I go to the railroad company and ask what it will charge to take one horse there. I am told $20. 'And what will you charge for two horses?' I ask. 'Thirty dollars' is the reply.

"You might say they should charge twice as much for two horses as for one. But the two will occupy practically no more space in the car than one would, and so the company can afford to make a lower rate per animal, although it could not afford to send one horse for half as much as the two would cost.

The railroads have done m[illegible]e than any other industry to open [illegible]p and make prosperous the countr[illegible]nd yet the men who have led in this vast development, and who have devoted their lives to the extension and improvement of these most valuable properties are treated like aliens; pursued as if they were robbers and pirates, instead of being considered, first of all, as absolute benefactors, whose ability and resourcefulness have made possible much of our commercial progress and given us much of our present strength as a nation.

Railroads Not Criminals.

"The railroads should not be treated as criminals and robbers. If they have bought legislatures, it is because legislatures have been for sale, and often they had no other way of accomplishing their ends.

"The one great fact being overlooked in this country today is this—that there has arisen among us, as a logical accompaniment of the advance and development of civilization a body of men whose ability is so much larger and whose view of things is so much clearer than that of the ordinary being, that the latter cannot begin to comprehend the true place of the former in our modern system.

"They form a new and necessary factor in the progress of human order, and they should be given every opportunity to do their work, without being hampered by blind bigots, who cannot or will not look ahead and measure the needs of the future.

"The time was when I felt that Mr. Bryan was the man for that purpose. After he had made his trip around the world and become better acquainted with human needs, and after he had outgrown some of his fallacies, I hailed him as the right man for the task. But he upset all such thoughts when he came out for Government ownership of railroads in his speech on his return to New York.

"As a matter of fact, it is not leading that we need. We are being too much led at the present moment. We need a sane, sensible man who would be fair to the people and fair to the corporations, and thus allow us to settle back into the ways we once followed.

Fairbanks the Best Man.

Perhaps Mr. Fairbanks is the best available man of this sort at present. Perhaps his election as President might bring about a return to confidence. He is a conservative business man and a lawyer, and he is not ruled by impulse, as is the case with the present occupant of the executive chair.

"But Mr. Bryan has put himself into the same class with Mr. Roosevelt, and neither of them, nor any like them, will save us from the entanglements ahead."

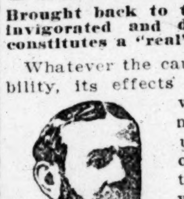
Diseased, "Worn-Out," Weak,
DEBILITATED MEN
Brought back to their "old self," or invigorated and developed to what constitutes a "real" man.—Dr. French.
Whatever the cause of Nervous Debility, its effects are irritation and weakness of the nervous system, the urinary tract, the organs, the prostate, unnatural waste of vitality, varicose weakness—it is the loss of life's vitality that makes weak, nervous, sluggish, despondent men, whether old or young, who lack ambition, strength and all that makes a man feel so different when he is able to enjoy the manly power which fits him for all the duties and pleasures of life.



B. F. French, M. D.

If despairing men who have tried everything—medical company and institute specialists, "weak men medicine" and similar fakes, could talk to the many who are so thankful to me for making them proud of their existence, for rejuvenating their manly power and making them "whole" in every particular, they would certainly see me at once, and get the benefit of so much that medical science affords them through a skilled scientific specialist.

"IMPUDENT OF TERMINAL TO SEEK WHARF"

Coal Dealer Contends That Rates Have Been Increased.

CHARGES TRANSFERRED

Individual Lines Have More Than Added What Association Dropped.

One of the most prominent coal dealers in St. Louis, answering the recent argument of President McCheesney that the Terminal should be granted increased facilities by the city, said Monday:

"The city should grant the Terminal no privileges on the wharf or anywhere else. What the city officials and all public-spirited citizens should do is to use every means to break up the Terminal Association.

"If this association could be dissolved or forced out of business in any way, then the 14 roads which comprise it would be forced to hustle for individual business, there would be real competition for handling freight, there would be no bridge arbitrary and St Louis shippers and manufacturers would be in a position like the shippers and manufacturers of other large cities.

Against Grant Now.

"The city should certainly not grant any privileges along the river front right now to the Terminal Association, particularly, because there are proceedings in court to oust the association from St. Louis.

"If these proceedings result favorably the Terminal will forfeit its charter. Having forfeited its charter, it would be unable to fulfill any contract it might make with the city.

"It looks to me like impudence for the Terminal to ask additional franchises from the city while it is threatened with ouster.

"But, even should the Terminal Association not be ousted as a result of these proceedings, it should not be granted any privilege at all by St. Louis. As long as it exists without opposition, it will throttle to a certain extent the business of St. Louis and force shippers and manufacturers across the river.

New Bridge a Help.

"If it cannot be forced to dissolve, every effort should be made to build the free bridge. It is said even if it is built, no railroads will use it, as they are nearly all in the Terminal.

"Common sense will show this is not true. In the first place, all the roads are not in the Terminal, and if they were, they could not afford to let a free bridge into St. Louis remain idle just for pure meanness. Their stockholders would not permit such a condition of things to exist. They would compel some road to cross the bridge and get the business in St. Louis by cutting the rate under the Terminal.

"Outside of all this it is interesting to note all the claims made by Mr. McChesney in his recent interview in the Post-Dispatch. What Mr. McChesney said was very largely true. But he based it on what I consider a false assumption.

"He took the view that the Terminal Association is a separate institution from the 14 railroads that compose it. However this may be in theory, it is certainly not true in fact. These 14 railroads own the Terminal and they receive the profit made through its operation.

"It is a striking thing in this connection that as the Terminal has reduced its price for bringing cars across the river, the railroads that compose it have more than evened up by increasing their rates for hauling cars from nearby points in Illinois to East St. Louis.

Coal Rates Raised.

"Since March, 1906, the Terminal has reduced its rate for bringing coal across the river from 30 cents to 20 cents a ton. At the same time the 14 railroads that comprise the Terminal have increased their rates for hauling coal from points within a 50-mile limit to East St. Louis from 25 cents to 42 cents a ton. What's the result? Instead of paying 55 cents as of old to bring coal from the 55-mile radius in Illinois to St. Louis, we now pay 62 cents.

"The roads that own the Terminal thus get 7 cents more a ton for their work than formerly, although, as Mr. McChesney says, the Terminal rate is less.

"Mr. McChesney admits that the arbitrary has not been abolished on bituminous coal. That is certainly correct.

"Mr. McChesney contends that the 20-cent rate of the Terminal is very fair, as the Terminal gets coal in the suburbs of East St. Louis and carries it for 20 cents to any point within 20 miles of the river on this side. There is no doubt that for such a haul 20 cents might be considered a fair price, compared to some other rates.

"But the fact is that the great majority of cars of coal brought over the bridge by the Terminal are not hauled more than three or four miles from the river on this side. Some are deposited on the levee. And this shows that for carrying coal one mile—that is about the width of the Mississippi—the Terminal charges 20 cents a ton.

Should Have Graduated Rate.

"That is not right. The fairest thing the Terminal could do would be to have a graduated rate based on the length of the haul, under present conditions.

"It is the same way on the other side of the river. Forty-two cents a ton might be a comparatively fair price for coal hauled to St Louis from the 50-mile radius. But the great bulk of it comes from mines within twenty or, at least, twenty-five miles of East St. Louis. Much of it comes only eight or ten miles, but the rate is just the same.

"There is no reason why these 14 railroads which own the Terminal should make their group point in the suburbs of East St. Louis and charge one rate from the coal mines to that point and other from that point to St. Louis.

"The fair way to do would be to make the group point on this side of the river, charge their rate to the St. Louis point and then make a graduated charge, as they do in Chicago, from the St. Louis group point to the point of destination.

"That would be done if all the roads coming into St. Louis were not in the Terminal. And it will be done if the free bridge is built and one road uses it.

Consumer Pays Difference.

"The injustice of the entire proposition is shown by the fact that coal can be shipped from the mines near East St. Louis to Chicago for $1 a ton. The distance is 332 miles. That makes a rate of about 3½ mills per ton per mile. Take a mine 10 miles from East St. Louis. The rate is 42 cents a ton to St. Louis. That makes the rate of nearly 4 cents per mile per ton. Isn't that some difference? And the consumer in St. Louis pays the difference, remember, not the coal company, because it advances its prices to cover this rate.

"All this shows that the Terminal operates to the distinct disadvantage of St. Louis. Manufacturers can get land cheaper in East St. Louis and can get their coal there cheaper by 20 cents a ton.

"It is no wonder they remove from St. Louis. I think they will continue to remove so long as the Terminal Association exists for its purpose to maintain arbitrary rates."

East St. Louis News

The Alta Sitas defeated the Grand Leaders by a score of 6 to 5 in a 10-inning game at Alta Sita Park yesterday afternoon. The feature of the game was the catching of Sallers, who played a perfect game behind the bat for the Alta Sitas. Ames of the Alta Sitas struck out nine and Aldred of the Leaders fanned six. Ames pulled out of a tight place in the fourth inning, when he stopped a hot grounder and made a double play when the bases were full. Miller's batting and base running scored three of the six runs made by the Alta Sitas. The Ziegenheins were defeated by the Ben Millers 7 to 5 at Kulage Park, St. Louis.

The Columbia Club will give an outing and reception at Priester's Park Thursday night. The Knights of Columbus and their friends have been invited.

The funeral of Mrs. Martha Watts, 40 years old, who died yesterday of dropsy at her home, 1201 Piggott avenue, was held this afternoon from the family residence to Mount Hope Cemetery. She is survived by five children.

The body of Mrs. Edna Smith, 28 years old, who died Saturday night at her home, Fifteenth street and Winstanley avenue, was taken to Ironton for burial. She is survived by her husband and three children.

A verdict of death from heart trouble was returned by the Coroner's jury at the inquest this morning on the body of Charles McFarland, a wellknown negro politician known as "Blue," who dropped dead last night at his saloon at Eighth street and Walnut avenue.

The Fats and Leans of the Retail Liquor Dealers' Association will play a game of baseball Tuesday afternoon at Alta Sita Park. The Fats were defeated by the Leans by a score of 12 to 11 two weeks ago, and the Fats are anxious to show the Leans that their victory was an accident.

A feature of the annual outing to be given by the Knights of Columbus at Lansdowne Park, July 4, will be the baseball game between the married and single men belonging to the order. Representative George Smith will be on the coaching line for the married men.

East St. Louis Lodge, No. 40, Degree of Honor, will give a euchre Wednesday night at Jakiesch Hall.

The suggestion contest by the Civic Improvement League, in which ideas and suggestions for beautifying East St. Louis were submitted, closed yesterday, and the prizes will be awarded as soon as the committee can decide upon the winners.

A public meeting of the Board of Public Improvements will be held Thursday morning at the City Hall to discuss and formulate plans for an outlet sewer. The objectors to present plans and those having new plans will be heard, and from the suggestions the board will draft an ordinance and submit it to the City Council for passage.

Agnes Denvetter, a negress, was shot in the right hip last night by Jim Henderson, a negro, during a quarrel at a saloon at Twenty-second street and Broadway. She was taken to her home, 127 North Twenty-fourth street. Henderson escaped.

The Lansdownes defeated the Fern Glens yesterday afternoon at Athletic Park by a score of 8 to 2, in the first game in the series for the city championship. The next game will be played next Sunday at the same park.

DOUBLE DEATHS TANGLE ESTATES

Two Husbands and Two Wives Die Together With Insurance Payable to Other.

WHO LIVED THE LONGEST?

Relatives to Bring Suits, Being in Two Factions, Each Claiming Property.

Public Administrator Troll has insurance policies to the amount of $7000 tied up in his office as the result of the double asphyxiation of William L. Burnes and his wife, Mary L. Burnes, at 4118A Maffitt avenue, and of Joseph R. Gabler and his wife, Ida, who were asphyxiated at 3446 Lawton avenue on the night of May 31.

Each husband had an insurance policy payable to his wife and each wife had a policy payable to her husband. As the Public Administration has not been able to determine in either instance whether husband or wife died first, he has been in a quandary what to do with the money.

Burnes and his wife each had a policy for $2000 payable to the other. Gabler had a policy of $1000 payable to his wife, and Mrs. Gabler had a policy of $2000 payable to her husband. Burnes and his wife also owned the Maffitt avenue flat in which they were living. It is worth $4000 or $5000.

The brothers and sisters of Burnes have claimed the estate on the theory that he died last. The relatives of Mrs. Burnes claim the property, which includes the $4000 insurance and the flat, on the theory that she survived her husband. It appears that Mrs. Burnes committed suicide by turning on the gas in her room, and that Burnes, who occupied an adjoining room, was also asphyxiated. The public administrator has no means of determining whether the husband or wife died first, and consequently he cannot distribute the property until this fact is settled in the courts.

Precisely the same conditions prevail in the Gabler case. Dr. Milton J. Hopkins, who was called to attend the Gablers, has given it as his opinion that Mrs. Gabler survived her husband. This opinion is based upon the fact that when the physician was called rigor mortis had set in on the body of the husband, but that it did not set in on the wife's body until half an hour after he called.

The relatives of the Burneses and Gablers are preparing to take the mooted points to the courts for adjudication.

NEGLECT LED TO SLAYING OF GUY

Two Policemen Accused of Failing to Restrain Humphrey When Intoxicated.

Neglect to perform a duty that would have prevented the killing of Daniel Guy, an ambulance driver of the City Dispensary, by Probationary Patrolman Humphrey, is charged against Policemen Albert White and August A. Molden in an affidavit filed with the Board of Police Commissioners.

The policemen will have to stand trial Friday and defend themselves against the statement made by Roy Sackett of 4101 Chouteau avenue, on whose complaint the charges are based.

Sackett says that Patrolmen White and Molden were standing at the corner of Sarah street and Chouteau avenue at 12:25 a. m., June 8, when Policeman Humphrey, in full uniform, appeared there drunk. Sackett says he called the attention of White and Molden to Humphrey's condition.

White and Molden made no reply, Sackett says, but walked away.

Half an hour later Humphrey quarreled with Guy in a saloon at the same corner and later Guy was shot to death. The shooting took place on the beat patroled by White and Molden.

After the killing Sergt. Byrnes and Patrolman White arrested Humphrey, but it is charged that White even then did not tell of having neglected his duty.

In the charges filed with the Police Board it is alleged that if White and Molden had arrested Humphrey as the rules require, the killing of Guy would have been prevented.

AERONAUT HAD NO POCKET IN TIGHTS AND NO DOLLAR

Farmer Held Him Captive Because He Broke Fence and Wouldn't Pay.

When L. F. King made a balloon ascension at Alton Sunday afternoon he wore a suit of baby blue tights as he did his act on the trapeze bar attached to the gas bag. When 1000 feet from the ground he cut loose a parachute and dropped safely to the earth on John Sawyer's farm, just north of Alton.

As he came to earth King and his parachute struck a fence and broke a post. Mr. Sawyer hurried to the spot and demanded $1 to pay for the damage to the fence. There was no pocket in the blue tights, and Aeronaut King had not the necessary dollar. The farmer did not care where the money came from, but he refused to let King depart until settlement was made for the fence.

Finally a compromise was arranged, and Sawyer accompanied King back to Rock Springs Park, where the ascension was made, and the aeronaut got the dollar to pay for the broken fence.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 17, 12:30 p. m.—The stock market improved some after the first half hour and with only limited operations was just about at the opening figures of the day at 12:30.

Among the railroad stocks, those which gained ½ to 1 point during the forenoon are Atchison, St. Paul, Great Northern, the Harriman Pacifics, Pennsylvania and Northern Pacific. The industrials were also higher ¼ to 1 point.

NEW YORK, June 17, 9:30 a. m.--The stock market Monday opened with a broader range of activity, but at a decline of ⅛ to ⅞.

Reading was low at the opening—only a fraction—but its trend was downward, with considerable activity.

Among the industrials the showing at the opening and during the first half hour was altered favorably. Steel common was ⅛ lower at the opening; Amalgamated Copper was ⅛ higher; Sugar opened at parity with Saturday's finals.

Soon after the opening the condition among the industrials changed and they also took the downward tendency. Smelter opened ¼ lower, regained the loss in a few quotations, but was weak and unable to retain figures equal to the best of Saturday.

COTTON.

(Francis, Bro. & Co., 214 N. Fourth st.)
ST. LOUIS, June 17.

To meet the decline in the New York market on Saturday, Liverpool cables this morning were expected to report first sales in that market at a loss over Sunday of 9 to 10 points. The opening, however, was just a shade better than due, being off only 9 points and tone of market called steady. At 12:15 (Liverpool time) the market was quiet, but showed some improvement from the opening, net loss at that time 7 to 9 points on near months and 6½ to 8 on the distant months.

Spot business was fair, at a decline of 8 points. Middling quoted at 7.68d; sales, 7000 bales; imports, 5400, all American cotton.

The opening sales in New York this morning were off from 10 points on the old crop months, 4 to 7 points on the new crop months; first sales as follows: July, 11.51c; October, 11.35c; December, 11.34c; January, 11.47c.

Fair weather predicted generally throughout the cotton belt.

MAY LET MEN FISH IN PARK

IT WILL PROMOTE SPORT

Fish Commissioner Anxious to Show Vastness of the Missouri Product.

Messrs. William H. Hughes and Joseph M. Shortal, St. Louis members of the Missouri Fish Commission, told a Post-Dispatch reporter Monday that they will suggest to Park Commissioner Scanlan the propriety of establishing an annual fish day, on which all St. Louis will be invited to angle for home-grown bass, carp and perch in the lakes of Forest Park.

"Our idea is simply to do something to encourage interest in fish in Missouri," said Mr. Shortal.

"We think this would be a good way to attract attention to the fact that the Missouri Fish Commission is doing everything possible to encourage the propogation of fish in Missouri.

"At the same time it would interest and furnish pleasure to a great number of persons and would not do any harm to the park or the lake.

"We could stock the lake sufficiently so that one day's catch would not cause any great loss."

The idea is supplemental to the one advanced by Mr. Hughes to establish an aquarium in Forest Park, displaying samples of Missouri-bred fish. He says New York State has established such an institution in Battery Park and that it is a great attraction there.

Amelia Bingham's Mother Here.

Amelia Bingham's mother, Mrs. M. E. Swilley of Hicksville, O., was a particularly interested member of last night's audience at the Suburban Theater, watching the progress of "The Modern Lady Godiva" with deep attention. Mrs. Swilley, until her arrival in St. Louis Saturday, had never seen her daughter on the stage. She will remain throughout the present week, and, having already witnessed performances of "The Eternal City" and "The Modern Lady Godiva," will also see Miss Bingham in "Mam'selle Marni" and "One of Our Girls," thus getting something of an idea of the Bingham range of characterization.

Virginia Harned, who next week succeeds Amelia Bingham as the Suburban star, was also present last night, occupying a box. She was attended by William Courtenay, her leading man.

Golfer's Fish Story.

From Golf Illustrated.

Some time ago a Northern golfer drove a ball a fine, low, skimming shot across a river. Just as the ball was nearly over a salmon leaped at the ball and caught it in its mouth. Such was the pace of the ball that it carried the salmon on to the river's bank, where it was immediately secured with the ball tightly wedged in its teeth.

WHEAT PRICES ROSE ALMOST CENT

OTHER GRAINS ARE FIRM

Wheat Visible and Afloat Stocks Decrease Sharply—World's Shipments Good.

Local wheat was rather unsettled Monday and at the close was about a cent higher. July wheat closed 1c higher at 89⅜c and September 1⅛c higher at 91⅛c sellers. December wheat closed 1⅛c higher at 93¼c bid.

Liverpool cables on wheat closed ⅜d higher. Berlin wheat closed 1⅞c higher and Budapest wheat ⅞c higher. The visible supply of wheat decreased 1,107,000 bu and now amounts to 48,017,000 bu, against a decrease of 1,620,000 bu, with 28,164,000 bu at the same time last year. World's shipments of wheat were 11,568,000 bu, against 12,320,000 bu last week and 9,776,000 bu a year ago. Wheat and flour on ocean passage decreased 5,631,000 bu.

The local market was broad and active and the range was good. The fine weather and large receipts, together with the lower curb at Minneapolis, caused some selling at the start which caused July wheat to open ⅜c lower at 87⅝c and go as low as 87½@87⅝c and depressed September from the unchanged to ¼c lower, opening at 90c to 89¾c to 89½c. The selling was light and scattered, however, and a good demand soon turned up, prices making a full recovery and a good advance.

The traders who recently sold wheat in large volumes apparently overdid themselves and when the large operators started to buy in good quantities there was a scramble to cover among the shorts. The sharp advance at other markets were the chief incentives to the buying. Damage reports from abroad also helping and July option advancing to 89½c, and Sept. to 91¼@91⅜c. The trading slackened up late in the day and the latter part of the session was very dull, with prices narrow and a fraction below the high point.

There was a good spurt of buying just before the close, however, and July advanced again to 89⅜c and Sept. to 91⅛c.

The cash demand for wheat was rather slow and prices about steady. Primary receipts of wheat were 692,746 bu, against 397,770 bu last year and shipments were 408,907 bu, against 219,600 bu last year. Local receipts were 35,467 bu, against 32,000 bu last year, and shipments were 42,255 bu. Clearances of wheat and flour for the day were 504,000 bu.

The corn market was quiet. In spite of the perfect weather there was a good demand at the start, based mainly on the strength in wheat, and July option opened ⅛c higher at 50⅝c and advanced to 50¾c and Sept. opened ⅛c higher at 51¼c and advanced to 52c. A sagging tendency was apparent late in the day and July closed at 50½c and Sept. at 51⅝c.

The visible supply of corn increased 1,079,000 bu and now amounts to 6,639,000 bu, against an increase of 630,000 bu, with 4,446,000 bu in sight at the same time last year. World's shipments of corn were 7,020,000 bu, against 4,851,000 bu last week and 3,704,000 bu a year ago. Corn on ocean passage increased 3,459,000 bu. The demand for cash corn was good and prices ruled firm. Primary receipts of corn were 1,480,230 bu, against 825,345 bu last year, and shipments were 874,450 bu, against 645,000 bu a year ago. Local receipts were 326,700 bu, against 94,600 bu last year, and shipments were 109,760 bu. Corn clearances were 148,000 bu.

Oats were fairly active. There was a good demand, mainly from the shorts, and prices were bid up steadily, though few sales were made. July option opened with bids ⅛c higher at 42¼c, was in demand at 42⅝c and closed at 42⅞c bid. September option opened unchanged at 35⅝c, was bid up to 35¾c and closed with sales at 35⅞c.

The visible supply of oats decreased 1,246,000 bu and now amounts to 8,937,000 bu, against a decrease of 358,000 bu, with 7,802,000 bu in sight at the same time last year. Cash oats were in good demand and steady. Primary receipts of oats were 542,053 bu, against 547,785 bu last year, and shipments were 307,635 bu, against 514,000 bu last year. Local receipts of oats were 156,800 bu, against 88,000 bu last year, and shipments were 46,230 bu. Clearances of oats for the day were 10,000 bu.

FLOUR—Receipts were 6080 bbls.; shipments 13,350 bbls. Quote soft winter flour, patents, $4.40@4.70; straight, $4.10@4.30; extra fancy at $3.75@3.90 in wood; low to medium grades, in jute, $2.60@3.10; hard jute sacks, patents, $4.05@4.30; straight at $3.80@4; clear at $2.90@3.30; low grade at $2.40@2.70; spring patents at $4.55@4.70 in jute.

HAY—Receipts, 577 tons local and 345 tons through; shipments, 530 tons. Quote timothy hay, choice, $20@21; No. 1, $18@20; No. 2, $16@18; No. 3, $11@14. Clover hay, choice, $18@19; No. 1, $15.50@16.50; No. 1 clover mixed, $18@18.50; No. 2 clover mixed, $14@17. Prairie hay, choice, $12; No. 1, $11@11.50; No. 2, $9@10.

FINANCIAL.

Since May 27 Paris has taken $12,400,000 gold from the United States. Monday's advices from the New York center were to the effect that the movement is expected to continue—probably until $20,000,000 have been shipped. To what extent London will be called on for gold by Egypt is not now known.

On the New York Stock Exchange Monday call money opened at 2¾ per cent. Some of the commission houses there wired their correspondents Monday that in all probability call money rates will rule higher there this week—probably 3½ to 4 per cent, the latter rates being the rare exception last week.

Messrs. George H. Burr & Co., commercial paper brokers, 304-5-6 Security Building, report local money: Indorsed bills receivable, 4 to 6 months, 5½ per cent; high-grade and single-name paper, 4 to 6 months, 5½ to 6 per cent; other names, not so well known, 6 per cent on first-class security. Money market steady; demand for money continues good.

President Lee of the Merchants-Laclede National Bank, who has been in Europe, will sail for home June 25 and arrive in St. Louis, July 1.

Bankers report an abundance of funds available for loaning on demand, but there does not seem to be overly much time money looking for an outlet. This is due to the fact that institutions generally are not inclined to place their funds for extended periods. In fact, practically none of the mercantile bills now being placed here are for more than four months duration. The ruling rate for demand funds is 5 to 5½ per cent, while 3 to 4 months paper is quoted 5¼ and 5½ per cent.

The advance of 2 or 3 points in the price of Central National Bank within the past two weeks is due to the absorption of a considerable block of stock by a director in the institution. The deposits of this bank are still growing, and a good many new country accounts are reported.

LIVESTOCK.

CATTLE—About 1000 natives and 2500 quarantine cattle made up the day's supply a few good steers were included, but bulk of the supply consisted of common and fair kinds; best heavy steers sold steady to 10c higher, while lightweights and common kind were only steady; cows and heifers were in light supply and sold irregularly; best kinds generally sold active and steady and the common kinds sold slowly at weak prices; bulls, calves, stockers and feeders sold steady, with last week's close.

LOCAL STOCKS FAIRLY ACTIVE

Prices Not Materially Altered, but Miscellaneous Issues More Pronounced in Trading.

BANK ISSUES ARE DULL

Traction Preferred and Bonds Appear as the Features in Selling.

In a market somewhat better than has been the rule of a Monday forenoon session, prices on the St. Louis Stock Exchange were not materially changed.

Noticeable features were resumption of bond sales and activity of the stock issues of the miscellaneous list.

There was notable quiet in bank and trust issues, the only sales being 5 shares of Missouri Lincoln Trust at 120, the best price at which the stock has sold in regular lots in many weeks.

United Railways preferred stock and the 4 per cent bonds were fairly active selling a fracture easier for the preferred at 68⅛ and ⅛ higher for the bonds at 81⅛.

Among the other active stocks in the miscellaneous list were Kansas City Home Telephone and Coke common and preferred.

BEGGARS ASK HELEN GOULD FOR MILLIONS

Even Dainty Brides Demand That the Wealthy Woman Buy Their Trouseaus.

OTHERS WANT PIANOS

By Leased Wire of the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 17.—Four brides within a week have asked Miss Helen Gould to contribute $2000 toward their trousseau. The young women were unknown to her, so she declined.

Eleven persons, poor but musical, asked her to buy pianos for them, which she likewise politely begged to be excused from doing so.

Several men asked for money to take the rum cure and one woman applied for the price of a set of teeth.

Astonishing is the number of queer requests received by Miss Gould. They amount to $2,000,000 a week.

In writing to Franz Kaltenborn, director of the orchestra now playing at St. Nicholas Garden, Miss Gould expressed sympathy with the movement to raise a fund to put the Kaltenborn orchestra on a permanent basis and mentioned that this was by no means the only thing she was asked to encourage. Then she gave Kaltenborn a list from which these extracts are made:

Requests.	Purpose.	Amount.
1	To form colony in Cuba	$1,000,000
231	Cash donation (149, no amt.)	187,880
91	Loans (16, no amount)	156,205
149	To raise a mortgage (4, no amount)	77,755
43	Aid for churches (27, no amt.)	56,983
27	Aid for schools (22, no amt.)	35,400
26	Aid for libraries (24, no amt.)	10,060
34	To aid religious institutions (30, no amount)	3,000
1	To sell a farm	2,000
12	To buy inventions (10, no amount)	1,200
1	To sell a ring	1,200

There were one request to aid church fairs, 107 for money, 34 for old clothes, 3 for watches and 14 for scholarships.

Seventeen writers begged only for advice, 15 clamored for tickets or passes, one expressed a desire for railroad stock, 18 were ordinary "cranks," 18 put in requests for lace or embroidery and 8 wanted Miss Gould's autograph, but not on a check.

"Millionaire Bootblack" Has Son.

Employes at the Union Station all had something pleasant to say Monday to John James Neeley, "the millionaire bootblack," whose stand is at the depot. A son was born to him Sunday morning. Neeley is 21 years old and his wife is 18. They live at 2113 Pine street. Neeley is called "the millionaire bootblack" because his business is unusually lucrative.

CLIMBS TO CAR WINDOW AND GETS WOMAN'S PURSE

While sitting by the open window of a Pullman car, a purse containing diamond rings, money and railway tickets in her lap, Mrs. Minnie Griffin was robbed by a thief who climbed up the side of the car and grabbed the purse.

The robbery occurred at a water tank on the Missouri Pacific near Kansas City Sunday night.

Mrs. Gabriel was on her way from her home in Grand Junction, Colo., to St. Louis. When she arrived at the Union Station at 7 a. m. Monday she told the police of the theft, saying she had lost two diamond rings, $25 in cash, a ticket from Kansas City to St. Louis and a return ticket from St. Louis to Grand Junction. Her brother, George Zapp, secretary of the Missouri Belting Co., met her at the depot.

SOLD DRINKS TO SLY POLICEMAN

Hotel Man Thought Central District Patrolman Was a Soldier and Was Arrested.

Disguised in the uniform of a soldier, Patrolman O'Connor of Central District engaged a room at the Stag Hotel, Eighteenth and Chestnut streets, Sunday, and after being served with drinks arrested the proprietor, John J. Moran of 1300 St. Ange avenue, and the porter, George Davis of 2702 Morgan street.

O'Connor was detailed to get evidence that the "lid" was being tampered with, it having been reported to headquarters that Moran was selling liquor on Sunday. Attiring himself as a private in the infantry, O'Connor went to the hotel and registered. He was assigned to a room and a few minutes later he rang for the porter. Davis responded.

O'Connor says he purchased a drink of whisky and four bottles of beer in rapid succession. Then he called in Detectives McMullen and Wells, who were waiting outside, and arrested Moran and Davis.

Moran declares he had nothing to do with serving the drinks. He intimated that O'Connor had violated the Federal laws by donning the soldier uniform.

NEW YORK, June 17.—This is not a "want ad.", but any young, healthy physician who wants to enjoy a three years' vacation, with salary paid, will find himself acceptable if he will call upon Commander Robert E. Peary, Arctic explorer, who is preparing for another dash to the North Pole. Dr. Louis Wolff, surgeon who made the last trip to the North in the steamer Roosevelt, and who intended to go there again, has backed out for family reasons.

BURNED BY ACID IN PLANT BY BURSTING OF A CAST

POLICE DOUBT BARTOS' ALIBI FROM WYOMING

Discrediting a telegram from Sheriff E. M. Horton of Rawlings, Wyo., saying that Edward Bartos was employed by the Union Pacific at Rawlings from March 24 to May 24, the police are relying upon the confession of the 15-year-old negro boy, Eddie Williams, to prove that Bartos is the man who shot and killed Policeman Lemuel Boyce here on the night of March 31.

The boy, who says that he was one of Bartos' pupils in the practice of robbery and crime, is positive that on the night of March 31 Bartos robbed Rehm's saloon on Chouteau avenue, a block from where Boyce was killed.

The boy says that Bartos told him the next day of the killing of the policeman. The negro's story has been repeated before Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Don Summers and the evidence may be laid before the grand jury Tuesday.

HER DREAM ENDS WITH BABY'S DEATH

HER HUSBAND IS VERY ILL

Her Letters Returned Unopened, She Started to Portugal With Her Child.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

CHICAGO, June 17.—In a little white coffin in an undertaker's rooms in North Clark street lies the sole hope of peace between a stern father in far-away Portugal and a young wife who violated the command of her parents to follow her husband to the New World.

The coffin holds the body of Baby Rodrigues, 6 months old, daughter of Mary and Manuel Rodrigues. When the infant died in a car of the Chicago & Northwestern immigration train from the West yesterday just outside of Chicago, Mrs. Rodrigues' errand of peace came to an end.

She Is in a Cell.

The young mother now occupies a cell at the Chicago Avenue Police Station. Her husband, the chief cause of the proposed trip across the continent and to Portugal, is lying near death in a hospital at San Francisco.

When Baby Rodrigues first saw the light of day in a hotel in San Francisco its father was so weak as to be unable to supply food for his family.

Mrs. Rodrigues had written repeatedly for assistance to her father, who is reputed to be a wealthy merchant in southern Portugal, but the letters were returned unopened. So, some weeks ago she decided she would carry her baby to her father as a peace offering.

Husband in a Hospital.

After many days of hard work the money to pay the passage to Europe was secured. Before Mrs. Rodrigues started on her journey her husband was taken to a charity bed in a hospital. Then some ailment seized the child and it died as the train entered Chicago.

"I don't know now what I'll do," the woman said in despair. "Baby's gone and everything is black. I suppose I'll go back to California."

The mother will be detained in Chicago until after the inquest over the baby, which was set for today.

"SPONTANEOUS LOVE" COLONY FALLS UNDER POLICE NOTICE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, June 17.—Efforts have been started to break up the "Home of Spontaneous Love," run at Wellesley by Frederick Reed, former master of the Boston Latin School.

Chief of Police Kingsbury of Wellesley has been asked to investigate and has promised to do so.

Overbrock, as the colony is known in the village, has made no secret of its ideas of liberal morality. The Chief has heard many startling stories of strange doings in the community.

Miss Caroline Hazard, president of Wellesley College, is one of those who have implored the Chief to blot out the colony. She has learned that students of her college were visiting the place and she is afraid their morals will be severely hurt.

Reed has run the colony for two years. His wife, who strongly believes in his principles, has helped him conduct it. There are absolutely no restrictions in life at the "Home of Spontaneous Love."

Reed maintains that "destiny" controls everything. While the marriage contract is decried, it is not an essential.

The Princess of Wales sets a good many styles for women in a quiet way. She keeps up with most of the fads, but there is one she will not tolerate. She insists that all her gowns have sensible pockets. The pocket in all her skirts is always placed in the seam and appears on the left of the front breadth of the skirt.

WOMEN GREET ROCKEFELLER; HE PRAISES THE SERMON

NEW YORK, June 17.—John D. Rockefeller went alone, in a big red motor car, from his Pocantico Hills estate to hear Rev. Dr. Aked's sermon in the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church Sunday.

More than one thousand persons were in the congregation, many of them "strangers within the city's gates."

Of these dozens lingered at a respectful distance until Mr. Rockefeller appeared in the avenue after the service. Then several women approached and, shy and embarrassed, introduced themselves. Mr. Rockefeller shook hands heartily and told them he was glad to see them.

"Why, I think he's real nice," said one of these women, and Mr. Rockefeller got into his auto and was whizzed away.

"He is as democratic and affable as a gentleman can be. I'll never believe anything against him again, no matter who says it."

"That was a fine sermon," remarked Mr. Rockefeller after Dr. Aked's discourse. Then, observing the size of the congregation, he added:

"People will come to hear sermons like that. Even in this day people are only too glad to hear good sermons."

Slept on Track, Was Run Over.

Edward Lavalle, 21 years old, of 1411 South Ewing avenue, has lost one of his toes and may lose his foot for sleeping on the car tracks. He dozed on the Twenty-first street bridge at 3 o'clock Sunday morning and rolled into the street. His left foot was on the car track. A Maplewood car ran over it. He is at the City Hospital.

Womanly Ailments

"I Am Poor"

writes Mrs. Louisa Johns, of Otwell, Ind., "but I value health, and cannot find words in which to thank you, for the good that Wine of Cardui did for me.

"I was troubled with female ailments, for about 4 years. All thought I had consumption. I lost flesh, and my back hurt me so bad I could hardly be up. At last I began to take Wine of Cardui, and after taking two or three bottles, I began to feel better. I have now taken about seven bottles; my back is so much better, I have gained in flesh, and am in better health than I have been for a long time.

"I recommend Wine of Cardui to all suffering ladies."

Mrs. Louisa Johns
